"If a boy puts up two of his fingers that means 'come and take a swim.' If a man goes through the same manoeuvre, that means 'come and take a drink.'"
A mother, noticing her little daughter wipe her mouth with her dress sleeve, asked her what her handkerchief was for. "It is to shake at the ladies in the street," said the little one. "That is what papa does with his."
An Oil City boy, who had run away from home, and at last returned, was asked if his father killed the fatted calf for the prodigal. "Not much!" he replied. "He didn't kill the fatted calf, but he wanted to slay the prodigal."
"So," said Hood, addressing the gate-keeper, who was very hoarse, "you haven't recovered your voice yet?" "No, sir," answered the man; "I've caught a fresh cold." "But why did you catch a fresh one? Why didn't you have the cold one cured?"

A sea-captain trading to the African coast was invited to meet a committee of a society for the evangelization of Africa. Among the numerous questions touching the habits and religion of the African races, he was asked, "Do the subjects of the King of Dahomey keep Sunday?" "Keep Sunday?" he replied; "yes, and every other thing they can lay their hands on."

Another Lincoln Story. While Judge Logan, of Springfield, Ill., was Lincoln's partner, two farmers who had a misunderstanding respecting a horse trade went to law. By mutual consent the partners in law became antagonistic in this case. On the day of the trial Mr. Logan having bought a new shirt, open in the back, with a huge standing collar, dressed himself in extreme haste and put on the shirt with the bosom at the back, and a linen coat concealed the blunder. He dazzled the jury with his knowledge of "horse points," and as the day was sultry took off his coat and summed up in his shirt sleeves. Lincoln, sitting before him, took in the situation, and, when his turn came, remarked to the jury: "Gentlemen, Mr. Logan has been trying for over an hour to make you believe that he knows more about a horse than these honest old farmers who are witnesses; he has quoted largely from the 'horse doctor,' and now gentlemen, I submit to you (here he lifted Logan out of his chair and turned him with his back to the jury and the crowd, at the same time flipping up the enormous standing collar,) what dependence can you place in his horse knowledge when he has not sense enough to put on his shirt?"

The roars of laughter that greeted this exhibition, and the verdict that Lincoln got soon after, gave Logan a permanent prejudice against "bosom shirts."

The Dutch Vegetarian. A man wandered down Calhoun street last night and approaching Irey's grocery store, asked of the proprietor: "You got some greens, don't it?" "Greens? Yes, sir." "You got rooting bakers?" "Rutubagas? Yes, sir; how many will you have?" "Got some little red plates, mit green tops?" "Red plates with green tops? Well, no, sir; I suppose you will find them at the china store up town." "Don't got no little red plates? guess it was better if you got some; guess you was a liar. Vich you call dose?" "Those. Why those are radishes." "Red dishes—dot's vat I said. Say maybe I get some letters of you to-morrow. You got it?" "Letters? There are no letters here for you; you must inquire at the post office." "Ankwire nit de best office for letters? Dose was a fine skeems. I vas up town and vent auf a bake shop and vant som' buns, and de man said, 'Get out, you oil bum, or I'll fire you troo de door.'" "You should have said 'buns.' He?" "Buns? Dot's vot I said—buns; and den I comes and vant some red dishes, and you dell me to go auf a china store; I vant some letters to eat and you say go mit de best office. I ogspect oft I vant some beats you tole me to go to de station house. I tell you vot I do—you can go to de tyfel. Of you vas a nice man, I vant some injuns and cowcum-pers, and blentiy pings, but I guess I go to de drug store and buy a brick und beddies rat plizen."
