Another Murder trial is now in progress in Carlisle. This time it is the trial of Squire Wynkoop, the accomplice of Mrs. Zell who was convicted at last term. The trial excites great interest.

Killed .- On Saturday afternoon the day express east, when near Clemson's crossing above Newport struck a Mrs. Jane K. Smith, aged about 70 years, residing at that place, killing her instantly. She had been warned just before the accident to leave the track as the Express was due, but failed to take the warning, with the above result. The deceased was the widow of Dr. Smith formerly of Adams county. A number of years ago she resided in this borough with Mr. J. Marshall her brother-in-law.

Foreible Mail Delivery .- On Tuesday morning W. D. Robinson, section boss on the Penna. railroad at this place, made a very narrow escape from having both legs broken, if not killed outright. He was engaged in shoveling snow from the plank walk in front of the station, when the Pacific Express east came thundering along. This train catches and delivers mail as it runs, and as the train passed Newport station, the messenger threw out the mail pouch, which struck Mr. Robinson on the legs, knocking him down on the platform. He saw the pouch coming and jumped to escape it, which is what saved him more serious injury. As it was he sustained some painful bruises about his person. It is very dangerous to stand about the railroad when these pouches are thrown off. We have seen them roll with fearful velocity for sixty feet or more.—Newport Ledger.

The business centre of Carlisle, made a narrow escape from being destroyed by fire on Friday evening last. Mr. J. Legget, a clerk in D. A. Conn was coming down the mountain road, and apparently about to lead in the bridal party, but Mr. Brackbill urged his horse to pass before Mr. Conn could make the turn, but as both the horses were very spirited, and as Mr. Conn was turning the corner his horse seemed to quicken his speed and turned so rapidly that a complete upset was the result. At this sight Mr. Brackbill's horse, which was a little in the rear, turned to one side of the road, ran into a fence and a second upset was the result. Mr. Conn had with him his wife and baby, and although in the upset the top, dash and shafts were badly smashed, yet no one received the slightest injury. The same was true as to Mr. Brackbill and Miss Annie Hoffman, who was with him.—Port Royal Times.

MR. EDITOR :- To all friends of home indus-MR. EDITOR:—To all friends of home indus-try and of financial prosperity, it is a pleasure to see energetic and deserving men, in what-ever pursuit, widening and enlarging their respective spheres of usefulness. Such men are public benefactors, and in many important ways, benefit the communities in which they live.

ways, benefit the communities in which they live.

With such a feeling of pleasure we chronicle some decided marks of prosperity we noticed in visiting the Centre Woolen factory conducted by Mr. J. M. Bixler. Most of the farmers and workingmen of the county well know of what we are speaking, for the entire wardrobes of many of them consist of fabrics made at this factory.

A few years ago Mr. Jacob Bixler, the genial owner of the entire establishment, procured

A few years ago Mr. Jacob Bixler, the genial owner of the entire establishment, procured three of the celebrated Turbine water wheels to run his flouring and woolen mills. These were the first wheels of the kind in the county, and nothwithstanding the ungracious reception they received at the hands of many of the old mill owners in the community, they have been doing good work, and they have fully justified Mr. Bixler in making the change. The introduction of this wheel into the woolen factory makes an epoch in its history. From that time a ceaseless hum of spindles and a clatter of shuttles has betokened the steady growth of the textile industry under the prudent management of the proprietor. And to-day, to meet the demands of his many customers, an engine has been procured, thus largely increasing the capacity of the establishment. Such steady progress, in the midst of the financial depression of the last seven years, of a branch of industry of which we hear so little, is certainly worthy of notice.

We are under the impression that these are the largest mills of the kind in the county, and are sure that they do the best business.

We are under the Impression that these are the largest mills of the kind in the county, and are sure that they do the best business. A business that not only covers Perry, but extends throughout Cumberland and Juniata countles. Let us hear more of the industries of Perry, of its social, moral, and intellectual progress.

For THE TIMES.

MR. KRITOR;—"Major," from Little Germany, who in an article published in last week's "Democrat," attempts to correct "Omega" in an article published in the same paper a few weeks ago, very much exposes his ignorance to the public. He appears to think that Omega is mistaken in regard to the distance between the correspondent's residences of Little Germany. Would Major, without measuring the distance be willing to swear positively that it is more or less than haif a mile? I trow not. Perhaps he would be like a certain person who was requested to swear before a justice of the peace concerning a little business affair, he wouldn't go, and he wouldn't swear. Major has been too shallow brained to learn that the eye with years of practice cannot be cultivated to ascertain distances accurately by sight.

not be cultivated to ascertain distances accurately by sight.

If Major would like to have the announcement made who wrote the account of the Band plenic held in Stambaugh's woods last summer, Omega would earnestly request the Editors of the Perry county papers to publish the name of the writer. If the name be not published it can be taken for granted that Omega did not write it, but that either Major or some one else did, and that Major is throwing out insinuations which he can not substantiate.

Major censures Omega for an act. of which tions which he can not substantiate.

Major censures Omega for an act of which he is guilty himself. He presumes that when Omega writes for the press he should not mind other peoples' business. Perhaps, Mr. Editor you are aware that Major never wrote an article without minding other peoples' business, and even in his last article if he had not minded Billy's and Omega's business he would have had nothing to write about. A person who does not use better logic than this, has, no doubt become very familiar with the leathern goggles, of which Major speaks, when he attended school and was considered a dunce

a dunce

The subscription paper will show that Omega contributed to the repairing of the Germany church according to his ability, but perhaps his ability is very much like Major's not very strong. Without consuming more space in your valuable paper in further showing Major's ignorance, I will just say that Major and Omega have resided in this vicinity for twenty years, and the people here ann judge for themselves which of the twain is the more reliable. twain is the more reliable. Lippincott's Magazine for February.

Lippineott's Magazine for February.

The opening article in Lippineott's Magazine for February, "A Day with the Ottawa Chantier-Men," by Frederic G. Mather, gives a lively-account of the lumbermen and much information about the reacures and prospects of the great Canadiau forest lands, with many good litustrated papers, by Edward King, describing in his usual flowing and graphic style the most picturesque and interesting of French provincial towns. The eighth chapter of Dr. Oswald's "Summerland Skotches," also illustrated, carries the reader to the Delta of the Sumasinta River.

"A Future Capital of the United States" is a short, well-written paper, discussing the claims for Kansas City to occupy this position at some future time. "The Bouapartes in Exile," by Arthur Venner, is a very entertaining paper supplementing and correcting an article on the Bonaparte family in a recent number of Harper's Magazine.

"Adam and Eve," the new serial, by the author of Dorothy Fox, introduces in the present number scenes and characters which will be new to American readers. There are also two very agreeable short stories by Margaret Bertha Wright and the author of "The Clifton Picture," a poem by Elaine Goodale, and the usual variety of reading in the "Monthly Gogsip" and "Literature of the Day."

Ballou's Montuly Magazine for Ferru-art.—The February number of this charming magazine—the best and the most popular of all the serials in the country—is leaved, and can be called a model number. There is not a dull article in it. There are romances, stories, adventures, travels, poetry, wit and humor, excellent illustrations, nice cogravings, and a fine view of Nassau, N. P., and a very reada-ble article about the same place by the author of "Running the Blockade." With its im-proved appearance, enlarged form, new type, of "Running the Blockade." With its improved appearance, enlarged form, new type, and so forth, Ballou's Magazine is gaining thousands of new subscribers, and we are glad of it, for it is worthy of support.

Five Years experience with the surrounding trade has taught us the wants of the people.
