

A Strange Witness.

A woman was examined as a witness on Saturday in the Hirth murder trial now in progress in Washington city, who is a deaf mute. Her appearance on the witness stand raised some questions for the court to decide for which no precedent could be found. The first objection made by the prosecution was as to the competency of the witness. This involved an inquiry into her mental and moral characteristics, which was difficult to make. Her husband said that he could not always understand her.—Prof. Gallaudet, who acted as interpreter, said that he thought she could distinguish between the truth and falsehood, but he did not know that she understood the nature and obligation of an oath. After some further tests the Court decided to hear her testimony. Objection was then made to Prof. Gallaudet acting as interpreter. He had gone over the story with her in the sign language at the office of the defendant's counsel and it was urged that her testimony would merely be a rehearsal of what was brought out there. The Court overruled the objection. When the woman began to testify, however, she made wild signs and the interpreter could not understand her. The woman's husband was brought in to assist Prof. Gallaudet, but the Court would not allow him to act as an interpreter. The witness was then dismissed and the defendants were deprived of the benefit of her testimony.

A Colony of English Bloeds.

Victoria, near Kansas City, is known locally as "Deadhead Eden." A few years ago Sir George Grant visited Kansas to hunt, and when he returned to England his stories excited the hearts of forty young sprigs of the nobility, and a short time since they entered Kansas with a flourish and founded the Victoria colony, where an elegant saloon is now maintained by drafts upon titled fathers on the other side of the Atlantic. The spirit of boon companionship goes so far that the barkeepers have standing orders to furnish "drinks to all visitors." The folks of the neighborhood appreciate the kindness of the young noblemen, who spend about $10,000 a year each, and Victoria is said to be on a never-ending, never-fagging lark. Lord Loftus is the possessor of large estates in Tipperary and his professed object in leaving London was to get away from wild associations. How well he has succeeded is shown by the fact that his Lordship spent $1,000 for liquors at the bars in that city during a week's visit last month. The colonists hunt a great deal, but most of their days are spent in card-playing and their nights in bachelor orgies.

An Indignant Girl.

The Jacksonville, Ill., Journal says: An instance of pluck occurred a few evenings since, in which a girl played the part of heroine. A young man called at the house, desired to see her at once and told her that her friend Mrs. Blank was very sick and wanted her to come immediately. Something startled by the announcement, she at once started with the stranger, but had proceeded only a short distance when a suspicion flashed upon her mind that perhaps the call was only a ruse to get her out, and she demanded to know if such was not the case. The fellow acknowledged that it was, and as an excuse said he had a bet of $10 that he could take a walk with her without being introduced; he furthermore offered to give her half the money if she would walk only a few blocks with him when he would return her safely home. The girl indignantly returned alone, and while standing at a back window, a few minutes afterward, overheard the fellow telling the story to a chum, and both laughing about it. She thereupon gathered a revolver and went for the pair in a way that sent them flying down the street.

Nice Isn't It?

Perhaps you have chewed gum without knowing what it was you had in your mouth—without knowing that it is only a refined product of petroleum. The Cincinnati Gazette says that when the thick brown liquid which comes from the earth at one stage of its manufacture is strained through heavy linen cloths, the residuum left is a dirty, brownish yellow wax, that smells abominably. That unpromising substance—melted, bleached, deodorized and prepared for commerce—appears in masses that weigh about one hundred pounds, resembling oblong blocks of clouded ice. The manufacturer of chewing-gum purchases these blocks ready made by his hand, and at once melts them down. To the hundred pounds of wax he adds about thirty pounds of sugar and flavoring and coloring matter. This is the chewing-gum which seminary girls love to roll under their tongues.

Cheap Wood sawing.

The Janesville, Wis., Gazette says: Two grocerymen made a bet yesterday as to which could saw a quarter of a cord of wood in the shortest time, the wager being a ticket to the lecture last evening. The one who owned the pile had his fellow grocerymen saw the first quarter, which he did in fifty minutes. He gave up then and refused to saw any himself, saying he could not beat that time, and paid over a dime to pay for the ticket. About this time it began to creep through the brain of the winner that he had been inveigled into sawing a quarter of a cord of wood for ten cents. He don't like it.

NEW YORK'S GAS-LIT LIFE ILLUSTRATED.

The above is the title of a series of sketches of the shady side of life and character in the Great Metropolis, now being fully illustrated from authentic sketches in the

of New York, which are realistic and faithful portraits from real life. The illustrations are by the best artistic talent attainable, and the descriptions are from the pen of the most gifted journalist and brilliant writer in America, who, it is conceded, has rivalled that master hand at work painting—Charles Dickens. It is sufficient to say that "New York's Gaslit Life" will present the most striking, vivid and truthful pictures of the under-current of life in New York City that have ever been presented to the public. The National Police Gazette of New York, is for sale by all newsdealers, price 10 cents per copy, or it can be ordered direct from the publisher.

Subscription price, $4.00 per year. The National Police Gazette, of New York, has no connection with any other publication of its class who for gain, as far as possible copy its title and appearance.

CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against buying weak imitations of the National Police Gazette. In all cases see that the paper is dated from New York and has the publishers name printed on each copy.

Remittances should be made by post office order, draft on New York, or by registered letter, to RICHARD K. FOX, Publisher, Cor. Spruce and William Sts., New York City, February 17, 1880.
