HOUSE, FARM AND GARDEN.

Agricultural Wisdom.

Corn alone is not good feed for any breeding animals.

Feed the poorest fodder first and follow with a better quality.

Three pecks of boiled potatoes, fed a day, warm is a remedy for diarrhoea in cattle.

Agricultural crops are like children; they need nursing and careful looking after every day.

"The liberal soul shall be fat." This applies in a remarkable degree the fertilizing of one's field.

Mowing the grass off every year impoverishes the soil, while grazing of the sheep will enrich it.

September calves escape the trying heat of summer, and can be pushed through the winter with grain.

Plant cabbages. If they bring a good price sell them; if not, feed them to sheep, milch cows and pigs.

Keep calves growing well from the first, but do not get them too fat if you wish to have them the best cows.

It is as wrong to confine stock without roots of some kind, as it would be to deprive men of vegetables.

Stagnant and impure water which cows drink while at pasturage is one of the most prominent causes of bad odor in milk.

The small farmer is the mainstay of the country's agriculture, since he continually works upon the quality of his products.

Many trees become hollow, or fall into premature decay, from the penetrating through old saw rents made in pruning.

Ashes saturated with kerosene and applied to cucumber and squash plants in the hill will be a great help in keeping off striped bugs.

The simple fact that a man can clear $80 from an acre of potatoes, does not demonstrate that he can clear a pro rata profit on 10,000 acres.

To insure a profit, pigs should be growing and thrifty from the time they are weaned till six to ten months of age, when they should be ready to slaughter.

Water For Cows in Pasture.

For milch cows it is very necessary that the water for them is pure, otherwise it taints the milk, and from this neither good butter nor cheese can be made. Where there is not abundance of clear running water in the yard or pasture, it should be supplied from wells or cisterns. If drunk from standing pools or small ponds, the water is always more or less foul, or so stagnant as to be unpalatable, and at times even unhealthful. In order to obtain a full flow of milk cows must have all the water they will naturally drink at morning, noon and night, otherwise they will not give full menses of milk, not will it be of so good a quality. But a running stream, more especially when at pasture, where they can go and drink at pleasure, is still better than that drawn from wells for them three times per day, at regular intervals. Necessity, however, often compels the latter course. Some dairymen, in order to increase the flow of milk, stimulate their cows to drink an extra quantity of water, by extra salting their food or stirring a small quantity of bran or meal in it. But this is objectionable, inasmuch as it tends to lessen the richness of the milk. This also fills up the stomach so much as to dilute the gastric juice and thus injure digestion, and more or less of the food is consequently voided whole. If there be a gain in milk, then a loss in food follows by stimulating excess of drink.

To Clean Gold Ornaments.

Make a lather of soap and water, and wash the articles; then lay them in dry powdered magnesia. When dry, rub them with a piece of flannel, or if embossed use a brush. Or the articles may be washed in soapsuds, and while wet put them in a bag with some clean fresh bran or sawdust; shake them, and they will look almost like new.

The Ohio Farmer says that sulphate of iron (green copperas) dissolved in water, at the rate of two pounds to a barrel, makes an excellent tonic for all kinds of fruit trees, especially pear, peach and quince. It may be sprinkled around under the trees with the watering pot, about blossoming time, or it may be sprinkled in its dry state, two or three ounces around each tree.

When the stopper of a glass decanter is too tight, a cloth wet with hot water and applied to the neck will cause the glass to expand, and the stopper may be removed. In a phial the warmth of the finger may be sufficient.

"WORCESTER"

Is now regarded as the Standard Authority, and is so recommended by Bryant, Longfellow, Whittier, Sumner, Holmes, Irving, Winthrop, Agassiz, Marsh, Henry, Everett, Mann, Stephens, Quincy, Felton, Hildard, Hemminger, and is, besides, recognized as authority by the Departments of our National Government. It is also adopted by many of the Boards of Public Instruction.
"The best English writers and the most particular American writers use WORCESTER as their authority."—N. Y. Herald.
"After our recent strike we made the change to WORCESTER as our authority in spelling, chiefly to bring ourselves into conformity with the accepted usage, as well as to gratify the desire of most of our staff."—N. Y. Tribune.
"The volumes before us show a vast amount of diligence; but with Worcester's diligence in combination with fancifulness. With Worcester, in combination with good sense and judgment, WORCESTER'S is the soberer and safer book, and may be pronounced the best existing English lexicon."—London Athenaeum.

THE BEST IN THE WORLD!

Arm and Hammer Brand.

Absolutely and Chemically Pure.

CHURCH & CO'S

BLU CARB.

SODA

—AND—

SALERATUS

Which is the same thing.

Impure Saleratus or Blu Carb Soda (which is the same thing) is of a dirty dirty white color. It may appear white, but it is not. It is a COMBINATION WITH CHURCH & CO'S ARM AND HAMMER BRAND will show the difference.

See that your Saleratus and Blu Carb Soda is white and pure. It should be ALL-SIMILAR-SUBSTANCES used for food.
A similar but severe test of the comparative value of different brands of Soda is as follows: Dissolve a dessert spoonful of each kind in a glass of water (not preferred) in clear glasses, stirring until all is thoroughly dissolved. The deleterious matter in the inferior Soda will be shown after settling some ten minutes or so, by the milky appearance of the solution and the quantity of floating lumpy matter according to quality.

Be sure and ask for Church & Co's Soda and Saleratus and see that their name is on the package and you will get the purest and whitest made. The use of this with sour milk, in preference to Baking Powder, saves twenty times its cost.
See one pound package for valuable information and read carefully.
