HOUSE, FARM AND GARDEN.

The Apple-Tree Borer.

Even where the borer is common but comparatively few understand its history. The perfect insect of the apple tree borer is one of the long-horned beetles; it is about three-quarters of an inch long, and has a pair of feelers more than half as long as itself; its body is brown, with two broad, nearly white stripes, hence it is called the two-striped superda. The beetle is seldom seen, as it is dormant by day but flies and works at night. The insects begin to appear in May and the next month the female lays her eggs on the bark near the ground. The young grubs soon bore through the bark, and enter the tree, where they live upon the sap wood, just beneath the bark, forming a cell or excavation the size of half a dollar. It lives, eats and grows here for about a year; then, having stronger jaws it in the second summer bores upward toward the center of the tree, making a hole three or four inches long, which it then curves outward until its upper end reaches the bark again and, at the beginning of the third winter, it makes a bed and rests, in the next spring, becoming a pupa, and soon after changing to a beetle which bores an exactly round hole through the bark at the upper end of its gallery, and comes into the world to lay eggs and produce more borers. This is the life history of the insect. Any "remedy" must be of a kind to keep the young borer out, or to kill it after it is in. Soap is found to keep off the parent insect. The base of the tree is kept clear of weeds and the lower part of the trunk is rubbed with soap; the application is repeated in June if washed off by rains. Young orchards are to be examined late in July or early in August. Weeds, trash, and about an inch of soil are removed from around the base of the tree. The bark is carefully examined, if the chips are found, or the bark looks dead and dark, cut into it with a sharp knife and cut the borer out. If the insect has bored upward, it is to be followed by a wire; a piece of whalebone, or a twig, and killed. - American Agriculturist.

Salt the Garden.

Gardens should be salted very liberally, for by so doing you will have no worm eaten radishes, maggoty onions, club footed cabbages, or any other vegetable grown in it injured by worms, grubs, or any vermin that infest the soil. Every one that raises anparagus knows the necessity of using salt abundantly. One can scarcely use too much. Many who grow cabbages know its value when applied to the roots or growing head; but every one does not know that growing onions may be buried under salt, leaving only the tops out, and that the onion will grow thriftily, while all maggots or worms will die or disappear—yet such is the fact. Salt mixed with wood ashes, applied at the rate of a handful to the centre of each hill of corn immediately after planting, will supersede the use of scare-crows and coal-tar, as no worm or crow will touch it, besides giving the fertilizing properties of the compound. A friend residing in Edmestown, Otsego county, who had broken up four acres of sward, upon which to plant corn, found it to be so very wormy, that he dared not plant it, until I gave him the above receipt, which he used after planting. In the fall he told me that, although his lot had woods upon three sides of it, he did not lose a single hill by worm or crow. The fact is worth remembering.

Milking.

In milking do not seize the teat between the thumb and forefinger, and drag down until the end slips from the grasp of the digits. Do not grasp with the hand pressing the nails into the teat, with a squeeze and a pull. Grasp the teat with the thumb partly upward, and the fingers in their natural position when closed, next the udder, and, closing the fingers in succession, force the milk downward, with a gentle pull on the udder. So proceed alternately with each hand, going further and further up into the udder as the flow ceases, until you have all the milk drawn. Thus you may milk easily for yourself and the cow. In fact, the cow soon comes to like the manipulation. If a few simple rules founded upon common sense were observed in milking, instead of kicking cows and holding up the milk, we should soon find our cows gentle to handle, and much vexation would be spared to the milkers. It should, however, be remembered that, in milking cows, gentleness is a cardinal virtue. - Prairie Farmer.

When cooking onions set a tin cup of vinegar on the stove and let it boil, and it is said you will smell no disagreeable odor.

"WORCESTER"

Is now regarded as the Standard Authority, and is so recommended by Bryant, Longfellow, Whittier, Sumner, Holmes, Irving, Agassiz, Quincy, Felton, Hilliard, Werninger, and is, besides, recognized as authority by the Departments of our National Government. It is also adopted by many of the Boards of Public Instruction. "The best English Lexicon and the most particular American writers use WORCESTER as their authority." - N. Y. Herald. "After our recent strike we made the change to WORCESTER as our authority in spelling, chiefly to bring ourselves into conformity with the accepted usage, as well as to gratify the desire of most of our staff." - N. Y. Tribune. "The volumes before us show a vast amount of diligence, but withal, it is a dictionary in combination with fancifulness. With Worcester, in combination with good sense and judgment, WORCESTER'S is the soberer and safer book, and may be pronounced the best existing English lexicon. - London Athenaeum.

THE COMPLETE SERIES OF WORCESTER'S DICTIONARIES.
