

Making New Legs for a Boy.

The Hartford Post tells the following story of the experiments made on a Windham county boy: "On the 31st of December, 1878, Jesse, an eleven year old son of Edward Morgan, an influential citizen of Canterbury, fell into a shallow vat containing a solution of potash in boiling water. He struck on both feet the liquid coming nearly up to his hips, and instantly the skin of the legs commenced to peel off. It was found that the flesh on both legs had been so thoroughly boiled that no cells remained for a new skin to form a growth upon. The boy's life was one of excruciating agony for months. Last April a young physician determined the salvation of the lad's life by skin grafting. The boy's parents imploring him to undertake the operation, he was finally induced to try it. Over two thousand grafts were used, the mother of the child, a noble-hearted Irish coachman in the family, the lad himself and many of the neighbors submitting portions of their cuticle for the operation. Hundreds of visitors flocked to see the boy and implore the doctor to try a piece of their skins in the operation. The pieces of flesh were pulled off with forceps, and were about three times the size of a head of a pin. The process of grafting is similar to horticulture. The grafts grow faster in the spring months. One of them is put on a muscle, where it sinks in and deposits a cell, after which the top sloughs off. Although the work is not yet complete, the legs are nearly restored to their normal and natural functions and the child can walk a short distance without a crutch, but is still very weak from exhaustion and emaciation."

Forty-two Children.

John Hepner of Reading was born in Germany in 1815. In 1840 he married. His wife lived eight years, and bore him seventeen children. She presented him with twins the first year of their marriage. The next year another pair of twins was born. Every year for four years thereafter Mrs. Hepner gave birth to triplets. The seventh year was signalized by the birth of only one child to the couple. Mr. Hepner's seventeen children, the oldest one 7 years of age, were taken in charge three months after Mrs. Hepner's death by a young German lady, who became the second Mrs. Hepner. The first Mrs. Hepner died in February, 1848. In February 1849, her successor presented Mr. Hepner with a boy. On Christmas day of the same year, the nineteenth child was added to the Hepner flock. Once a year for five years afterward the family was increased by twins, and for three years after that, one child a year was born to Mr. Hepner. The last three were born in this country, Mr. Hepner having emigrated from Germany in 1854. In 1857 his wife died, having been married nine years. Of the thirty-two children that had been born to Hepner twelve died. In 1858 he married a widow with one child. The third wife bore him nine children in ten years by single births. Mr. Hepner and his last wife are still living.

A Strange Accident.

A rather singular accident occurred in Wethersfield, Conn., the other evening. Two families by the name of Starr and Sheldon occupy the Rhodes house. Mr. Starr was trying some sort of an experiment with a pail of oil and varnish, when it caught fire and blazed up brightly. It was dark, and as Mr. Sperry happened to be out in the yard he ran to the window thinking the house was on fire. Just as he got there Mr. Starr threw the burning varnish out of the window, and singular enough, it struck Mr. Sperry fair in the face. In his agony the injured man started on a run with the intention of jumping into a hoghead of water near by, but covered as his face was by a plaster of burning varnish which completely blinded him he failed to reach the water and, stumbling fell to the ground. Assistance was immediately rendered, but the victim's face was shockingly burned. It was feared that he would lose his eyesight, but although his face presents a terrible appearance, he is thankful he can see, and his friends look forward to his complete recovery.

Cost of Living in New York, 1794.

The Tontine House, under the care of Mr. Hyde, is the best hotel in New York. He sets from twelve to sixteen dishes every day. He charges for a year's board, without liquor, three hundred and fifty to four hundred dollars. Butter in the market is thirty-seven and a half cents per pound; beef, compared with English beef, is poor; turkeys are sixty-two and a half cents each; common fowls are twenty-five cents each. Of "Albany beef," sturgeon, you can get enough for twelve and a half cents to feed a family. Oysters are plenty and large. Peaches sell two cents for three to six of them. All ranks of people smoke cigars six or seven inches long. Silver money is plenty, but gold is rarely seen. The population of the city is about thirty thousand. There are two places of public entertainment in the environs of the city that are much visited in the summer; one is called Belvidere, (on Bunker's Hill,) and the other Bundling's Gardens.—Extract from an old Letter.
