The Bloomfield Cimes.

HOUSE, FARM AND GARDEN.

How Bees are Made Harmiess.

The following contains a valuable hint to those who are obliged to handle bees. The little fellows are sharp strikers when disturbed, but it seems there is a very simple way to take the poison out of them. A gentleman says:

Some years ago I was visiting a family in Sussex County, N. J., where a large number of hives of bees were kept in a yard near the farm-house. The bees were unusually cross and belligerent-they would "biz out with angry fyke" at any one who approached their yard. On speaking to the old gentleman on the subject, he said they were feeding on buckwheat, and were full of "pizen," and he would cure them by the time I came again.

On the next day I found the bees quite pacific and quiet, freely letting me come quite close to their hives. On asking for an explanation of their amiableness, Mr. S. pointed to an effigy hanging near the bee-yard.

He had put this up in the night. In the morning the swaying of the effigy excited the warlike little fellows, and they literally covered their enemy all the forenoon, until all had stung him to their content, and had exhausted all their poison without harm to themselves or others. Verily, knowledge is power.

Rabbits Gnawing the Bark.

It is easy to prevent rabbits from gnawing the bark of fruit trees. Now that their food is becoming somewhat scarce, these animals will soon be attacking the young trees and eating the bark. This they do, no doubt, on account of an instinctive desire for some bitter substance to aid in digestion when their usual food becomes dry and innuturious. To prevent this the stems of young trees may be smeared with a mixture of cow-dung and clay made into a paste and brushed on with a broom, or a sheep's liver may be rubbed upon the bark. The protection afforded to rabbits by law is a mistake, as these animals are vermin and do much damage, much more in fact than the very small value of their flesh compensates for.

Getting Rid of Stumps.

Farmers who desire to get rid of their stumps, may find something to their advantage in the following recommendation from the Scientific American: "In the autumn bore a hole one or two inches in diameter, according to the girth of the stump, vertically in the center of the latter, and about eighteen inches deep. Put into it one or two ounces of saltpetre; fill the hole with water and plug it up close. In the ensuing spring take out the plug and pour in a half gill of kerosene oil and ignite it. The stump will smoulder away without blazing, to the very extremity of the roots, leaving nothing but ashes."

When you are driving a horse on a long journey, give it oatmeal in its water, about a quart in two-thirds of a pailful. This is a universal practice in England; it keeps up the strength of the horse and is easily digested, besides preventing any bad consequences as the result in drinking.

To Prevent Rusting of Tin.

Rub fresh lard over the dish, and then put it in a hot oven and heat it thoroughly. Thus treated any tinware may be used in water constantly, and remain bright and free from rust indefinitely.

Make the most of the little nutriment contained in potatoes. They ought to be steamed or baked. The latter is the best, and soaking in cold water for half an hour before putting in the oven is an advantage. In neither cose should the skin be removed before cooking.

Grateful Women.

None received so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters es women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical lick handschar westerness in the constant of the constan sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys,pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily remov-ed by these Bitters.—Courant, 12t

A Foolish Mistake.

Don't make the mi-take of confound-Don't make the mistake of confounding a remedy of acknowledged merit with the numerons quack medicines that are now so common. We speak from experience when we say that Parker's Ginger Tonic is a sterling health restorativ and will do all that is claimed for it. We have used it ourselves with the happiest results for Rheumatism and when worn out by overwork. See adv.—Times.
