A FULL ASSORTMENT OF HARDWARE, IRON & STEEL WILL BE FOUND AT OUR NEW STORE-ROOM. F. MORTIMER, New Bloomfield.

There is a good deal of modesty in this world that will gaze at almost anything, provided it can be seen through a crack.

Young Swell—"I say, boy, what do you do with your clothes when you've worn them out?" "Wears 'em 'ome agin," replied the boy.

Jones thinks a man is fortunate who has his will contested after death only. He says his will has been contested ever since he married Mrs. Jones.

A prominent dry-goods merchant in Boston worked half an hour on this proposition, and failed to give an answer: "If four men build a stone wall in nine days, how long will it take five men to build a like wall in six days?"

An inquiring man thrust his fingers into a horse's mouth to see how many teeth he had, and the horse closed his mouth to see how many fingers the man had. The curiosity of each was fully satisfied.

"What will be the difference between the present chief signal officer and the present occupant of the White House after the 4th of March next? One will be Hayes in (Hayzen) and the other will be Hayes out."

A lady who lived in Cuba used to observe some grand ladies driving out every afternoon with flowers in their hair, diamonds on their neck, and the volante full of the flounces of their profusely trimmed silks. One day the vehicle upset and spilled the great ladies, when it was discovered that the great ladies had on neither shoes or stockings.

"Isn't it awful cold?" queried Smith as he met Jones on the car the other day. "Terrible—terrible."

"Any of your water pipes freeze up?" "Worse than that."

"How?" "Had three barrels of potatoes frozen as hard as stones. I'll lose every one of them."

"Oh, no, you won't. Just head 'em up and send 'em to some charitable institution, and no one will know but what they froze while en route. It's a golden opportunity you should not neglect."

Some years ago, a wealthy couple presented themselves to be joined together in holy matrimony. After the usual ceremony was performed, the bridegroom advanced to the rector with, "Sur, what man I pay?" The rector said seven shillings. "Sur," said 'John, it's a great deal of money. Will na ye gi' me something back for luck?" The rector, out of patience, walked off.—John turning then to his bride, bid her prepare to go. The bride, however, looking her sweet spouse steadily in the face, said: "Dear John, you've highly insulted the pastor to-day; I'm ashamed of you." "Jane," said he, "hawl your noise; I don't like to drop old customs—I never bought a pig in my life but I got something back for luck."

Too Much for Her. "So you have finished your studies at the seminary? I was much pleased with the closing exercises. The author of that poem—Miss White, I think you called her—bids fair to become known as a poet."

"We think the authoress will become celebrated as a poetess," remarked the young lady, perily, with a marked emphasis on two words of the sentence.

"Oh!—ah!" replied the old gentleman, looking thoughtfully over his spectacles at the young lady. "I hear her sister is quite an actress, and under Miss Hosmer's instruction will undoubtedly become quite a sculptress."

The young lady appeared irritated. "The seminary," continued the old gentleman, with imperturbable gravity, "is fortunate in having an efficient Board of Manageresses. From the Presidentess down to the humblest teacheress unusual talent is shown. There is Miss Harper, who as a chemistess is unequalled, and Mrs. Knowles has already a reputation as an astronomeress. And in the department of music few can equal Miss Kellogg as a singeress."

The young lady did not appear to like the chair she was sitting on. She took the sofa at the other end of the room.

"Yes," continued the old gentleman, as if talking to himself, "those White sisters are very talented. Mary, I understand, has turned her attention to painting and the drama, and will surely become famous as a painteress, and even as a lectureress."

A loud slamming of the door caused the old gentleman to look up, and the criticess and grammarianess was gone.
