A Runaway Accident .-- On last Saturday morning as Mr. Ed. Pelham was coming to town in his milk wagon heapproached a train that had stopped on the crossing of Cumberland street when his horse became frightened. He got out and held his horse while the train was standing there, and when it moved he attempted to cross the track when the engine made a shrill noise and his horse started. Mr. Pelham's boot having caught between the planks on the crossing and the rail he was thrown from his feet. He held to the horse as far as John Hood's warehouse where he fell, the horse tramping on his knee, and gave him a severe cut above his right eye. He was stunned for a few minutes and was carried into Mr. Hood's store. His wagon was broken to pieces and his horse badly injured, one of the shafts running in behind his left fore leg.-Duncannon Rec-

An Outrage .- On Monday night the 25th of April an outrage was committed on the family of David Ebert, in Kennedy's Valley, a few miles from Landisburg, that was a disgrace to the County and calls for the severe punishment of the perpetrators. At that time four men with their faces blackened entered Ebert's house tied a rope around his neck threatening to hang him, tore his clothes and daubed him with tar. His wife escaped from the house and ran to a neighbor's. Her screams attracted some other neighbors who ran to the house and prevented further damages being done. The alleged excuse for this assault is, that Ebert had sold some prize packages which did not prove as great a "prize" as he had represented, but there are probably other reasons that prompted the deed./Ebert may have deserved all that was inflicted upon him, but that is no excuse for the course adopted. Warrants were issued for the arrest of David Morrison, Jr., William Morrison, Woodburn Mitchell, and An-

An Underground Visit.-Last Saturday we had through the' kindness of the Editorial Association of Cumberland county, the pleasure of joining an Excursion consisting of nearly two hundred editors with their wives and lady friends, for the purpose of visiting the newly discovered caves at Luray, Virginia. The special train left Harrisburg at 5:30 A. M., arrived at Luray at noon .---The route traveled over was the Cumberland Valley road to Hagerstown and from there by the Shenandoah Valley R. R., to Luray. This road has been recently opened and passes through one of the best valleys in the State. Arriving at Luray the visitors were furnished dinner at the expense of the Railroad company the party being divided between the two hotels as neither was able to accommodate so large a number. After dinner, carriages took the excursionists to the cave, which on this occasion was illuminated by six thousand candles.

These caverns were discovered last year and the company has since had a number of hands employed in building bridges across places where they are required, putting down board walks where needed, and making the various points of interest more accessible. We had previously visited Mammoth cave in Ky., and consequently thought it rather a waste of time to visit any other cave, supposing none could compare with that one. We were however compelled to acknowledge that in every point except size, the Luray caverns surpass the Mammoth cave, (and the Virginia caves are large enough to satisfy any one.) It is impossible for pen or tongue to give any just description of the wonders of these caves as they must be seen to be appreciated, but the following is a list of some of the points of interest to which visitors' attention is called.

which visitors' attention is called.

37. Express Column, 40 feet high.

We have not space for a description of the various views, but will partially describe the ball room. This is probably ‡ of a mile from the eutrance, and is reached by a broad passage which opens out to a room from one hundred and fifty to two hundred feet in circumference, with a ceiling about forty feet high. This ceiling is ornamented with beautiful stalactites of all sizes and shapes, some of them white, some bronze color, all seeming to be richly carved. The walls do not rise perpendicularly, but recede as they rise and are plentifully supplied with stalagmites which vary in size, shape and beauty. The ground has been floored over and a railing and seats are placed around the room making a comfortable place to rest. The Singer Cornet Band of Mechanicsburg, which had been engaged for the trip, played several pieces in this room, and a number of the party enjoyed an underground dance. After leaving the caverns, supper was furnished, and at 7 P. M, the train started on its return. The hotel accommodations are not sufficient now for a large party, but Mr. John H. Adams, proprietor of the Cave house, did all he could to render our visit pleasant. The Company is preparing the foundation for the erection of a large hotel which when done will be a pleasant stopping place for the crowd of travelers who will soon begin to visit that place.

Cumberland County .- We copy the following from the Cumberland papers of last week :

Mrs. Mary Ann Ensminger, mother of Samuel and Joseph Ensminger, and living with the latter, near Blosserville, fell down stairs Monday morning, at an early hour and broke one of her thighs, lacerating one ear and is other-wise seriously hurt. She was passing from one room to another and getting too near the stairway was the cause of the accident. As Mrs. E. is quite aged she will recover from this accident with difficulty, if at all.

George Fosnot and Charles Swigert, half grown boys, got into a quarrel on Friday evening last, near the postoffice, which ended in a stone thrown by the former which struck young Swigert in the mouth knocking out four of his front teeth. The fight was ugly and re-vengeful and should have been stopped by the bystanders.—Neuvoille Star. by the bystanders.-Neuville Star.

by the bystanders.—Neuville Star. About three years ago Mr. Jacob Wet-zel, who lives near Sulphur Springs in Middlesex twp., was annoyed by the predatory incursions of a supposed pole-cat or mink among his chickens, and determined to stop the raids. An iron trap was secured to a stake by a heavy chain, but next morning both trap and bait had disappeared. Search was made but without reward until a short time ago when the trap was found in the top of a large tree just felled, with a leg bone of some small animal still in its jaws. jaws.

That loathsome disease, small-pox, has invaded Mechancisburg and forced one of our most enterprising busi-ness men on Main street to keep his doors locked and blinds down for awhile. The house is loudly marked with that loathsome word, so that all who drive or walk by can readily read the warning. The case, we learn, is of the most malig-nant type, but as the authorities have nant type, out as the authorities have acted promptly and taken every precau-tion to prevent its spread, little or no alarm is felt. The chief burgess has promulgated his prerogative powers in such trying emergencies, and all our citizens are prompt to inaugurate a gen-eral war upon their premises with raderal war upon their premises with rad-ical disinfectants. Quite a number of cesspools have been condemned, and the owners notified to have the same thor-oughly cleansed. If we are correctly informed this case of small-pox was contracted whilst the unfortunate little girl was on a visit to Shippensburg.

An Insurance Anecdote-The Frederick (Md.) Times relates the following story of the speculation in lives in that city : "In connection with this insurance craze another amusing story is told. It is as follows : An old man of about 80 years, living in the suburbs of the city, supposed to be likely to die at any moment, was insured by a citizen for $8,000. The man being old and decrepit, poor and forlorn, having asked the holder of the policy on his life for assistance, was given a cheap suit of clothes and was told to wash up a little. He took his clothes went home, scrubbed up, and later made his appearance with pride beaming from his countenance before his noble benefactor, looking as fresh as a daisy. The policy-holder was thunder-struck at the old man's youthful appearance. When he recovered from the shock, he excited-ly called his wife. On her arrival upon the scene he pointed in horror at his subject and bawled out, "Look at that man! Why, great heavens! he looks man' W by, great heavens! he looks ten years younger than he ever did, and we've paid $35 assessment on him dur-ing the past week, too!" The old man whimpered: "Why Mr. Blank, you don't wan't me to die, do you?" "Don't want you to die!" frantically yelled his benefactor, "what in the name of Jeru-salem did I have you insured for."
