Under the new schedule the Pacific Express east does not stop between Mifflin and Harrisburg. This is bad for Newport and Duncannon passengers who considered this a favorite train.

The Juniata Herald says: Old Mrs. Dunkelberger, of Perry county, has bought a small property near Liverpool, for $400, the proceeds of insurance-policy premiums on her life, which is insured for about $400,000.

On Tuesday a little son of J. C. Epley, of Marysville, had his hands badly bitten by some pigs. The boy had put his hands through the openings into the pen which induced the pigs to make an attack on them.

Saturday morning, immediately after the rain storm, a dead infant, evidently just born, was found on the front porch of Mr. Henry Hager, in the Fifth ward, York. The baby was placed in a box and the case will, no doubt, be investigated by the coroner.

A pair of horses belonging to the Kither boys, in Carroll twp., ran away on Tuesday morning. They had been let stand "just a minute," when they start-ed, but after running about half a mile they got into the brush and were stopped, no damage having been done.

A cave has been found on the farm of Mr. Solomon Shiveley, in Green twp., Franklin county, a short distance from his barn. The discovery was made by some of his laborers while engaged in quarrying limestone, for burning. It has been explored for some one hundred and fifty feet.

Near the residence of David Lid-dick, dec'd,—the man who committed suicide a few weeks ago in Watts twp.,

A tine of a fork in the hands of Enos Carter on Saturday ran through the right hind leg of one of Dr. Stites' ponies. Carter was cleaning the horse's stall, and, according to his story, the animal kicked at him, its leg coming in contact with the fork as above stated. The horse is thought to be out of danger now, al-though it suffered no little from the wound for several days .- News.

The McVeytown Journal pays the fol-lowing deserved compliment to Senator

Smiley "Hon. C. H. Smiley our worthy State Senator, has gained a very flattering reputation as an orator since his entrance to the Senate, at least his eloquence has become more generally known, especially among his constituents. His speeches are not windy effusions, but sensible practical and convincing arguments, which have weight and influence.

Horse Shot .- A few nights ago a horse belonging to Mr. John Malone who resides near Louden was shot while running loose in the pasture field. The ball entered the horse's head between the eyes and lodged in his brain. Mr. Malone had only owned the animal a short time and cannot account for the dastardly deed. He is in rather limited circumstances and the loss is a heavy one. We hope the villain may be captured and receive the punishment he deserves .-Franklin Repository.

Frightful Accident.-On Wednesday of last week, Mr. David Asper went to Hunter's Run station, with his fourmule team, for a load of goods for Mr. Jacob Marx, merchant of Bendersville. Upon his return, loaded with 6700 weight, the bridge over Opossum creek, above Bendersville, gave way, precipitating wagon, driver and mules into the stream. Wagon and boxes were broken one of the mules injured, and Mr. Asper made a narrow escape. Sugar, coffee, etc., floated down the stream.

Mr. Marx at once took the necessary steps to secure damages from the twp., had an appraisement made by a jury, and sold the damaged goods at auction on Saturday last.

A Run Off .- On Friday afternoon last, as Mr. Harry Rice, stage driver, was getting ready to leave on his trip, his horses took fright, and started off without the driver. Dashing off at full speed, they turned into Pitt street, running against another stage-coach standing at the Mansion House and demolishing the tongue. From here they continued on out Pitt until they reached Pomfret. Here they ran into a carriage, driven by Mr. Peter Ritner, completely wrecking it. Mr. Ritner was thrown out, but sustained no injury. Charley Noble had just driven out of the alley next to Frederick's livery, and, taking in the situation, pulled his horse close to the pavement, and thus escaped injury. All the damage done was to the three carriages. One was reminded, in seeing the heavy stage-coach carried along so rapidly, of the old Hendel stage-coaches. We sympathize with Harry in the loss he has sustained .-But, then, he was just establishing a " limited mail route," and all new ventares will cost at the first trial .- Carlisle

Of Interest to Bee-Keepers .- The Juniata Sentinel says: Baltzer Lauver, of Milford township, has successfully cultivated the bee for many years, and he does not incline to the belief that the great loss among the bees during the past winter was caused by the bees freezing. He believes that they smothered. He had only one "skep" to die, and that was caused by starvation. He had taken too much of its honey. His theory on the question of the great mortality is this: "The bees smothered,"-The bee box set too closely to the platform; the exhalation from the bees, when the weather is cold, will form into ice at the lower edge of the box; the ice rim will gradually grow thicker if the winter cold continues, and thus the aperture between the box and the platform on which it sits will be gradually lessened. During the winter a number of bees in every hive die; the dead bees drop down and form obstructions to the passage of the air between the box and platform, and thus gradually the aperture is closed up and frozen shut and the hive must emother. "My plan," says Mr. Lauver, "is to put the bee box high enough above the platform to be certain that the circulation of air cannot be shut up by the bodies of dead bees and the frosting, or formation of the breath of the bees into ice on the lower edge of the box, and occasionally I remove the obstructions from the opening. The bees that were lost last winter were smothered."

Cumberland County .- We copy the following from the Cumberland papers of last week:

We regret to announce the sudden death of Mr. James Moore, son of Johnston Moore, who has been a life-long resident of our town. He has been boarding at the Stone bouse for some time, and on Wednesday evening he died while sitting in his chair. It is supposed by his friends that the cause was heart trouble, as he has a number of times said that he expected to die in just such a manner. lust such a manner.

Our citizens were thrown into an excitement on Saturday evening, about 6 o'clock by Charles Miller firing two shots from a pistol—one at a colored man on Court House square, and the other at Chief-of-Police Bautz, near Eby & Vanderbilt's grocery store. It seems that Miller had just been liberated from the Penitentiary, where he had been the Penitentiary, where he had been incarcerated for cutting Capt. Wm. Shriver, clerk at Register Drawbaugh's hotel, some two or three years ago. He had just arrived here in the nine o'clock train in the morning, and had been imbibling strong drink during the day. Coming up street in the afternoon he made threats to different parties that he would killed Judge Herman, Con-gressman Beltzhoover and Geo. Emig. Esq., who was District Attorney when Miller was convicted. After parading around for sometime, he finally landed before Spath's barber saloon, and flour-ishing a pistol, swore that he would "kill the d——d Dutchman." The barber chairs were full at the time, and immediately there was a scrampering to get out of the back window. In the meantime the door had been closed, but that did not stop the rapid egress of some. From here Miller started down Main street, and Chief Bautz followed after to arrest him. It was when Miller was accosted by Bautz, that the former deliberately drew the revolver from his pocket again, and fired at the officer, pocket again, and fired at the officer, and then started down street towards the depot at top of his speed. The street was lined on both sides with people, and strange to say, no person was struck by the ball from the pistol. Recovering from the shock, an exciting race took place, Miller leaving his pursuers a good distance behind. But he was finally stopped by Conductor Miller, and secured. Chief Bautz then marched his prisoner to juil where he most likely will prisoner to jail, where he most likely will remain until August Court, and from there he will land in his old quarters.
