HOUSE, FARM AND GARDEN.

Coal Ashes

Coal ashes are not as valuable for fertilizers as they are for other purposes.— We know of no better absorbents than coal ashes, and we are always surprised to see large, unsightly piles of such ashes lying around dwellings, when they might be profitably used in the privy vaults and for absorbing the sewage from the house. There is very little, if any, free alkali in them, so that they never liberate ammonia, but rather absorb it, also absorbing other offensive smells. Coal ashes could also be used to advantage in the hog pen, but much of their value depends upon the temperature at which they are burned. Ashes from furnaces are frequently vitrified; that is, they are burned at such a high temperature that they are dissolved to a certain extent. When this is the case, they make excellent garden walks .-Their mechanical effects upon the soil are excellent; they render-stiff, clayey solls more porous, and, strange as it may appear, they render sandy soils more compact. We have frequently spread them upon grass lands, and have been satisfied of their beneficial effects there; but have not yet determined whether the benefits arose from their mechanical effects in breaking the continuity of the sod, or from the small amount of alkali they contained .- Boston Cultivator.

Wonders of Broom Corn.

Broom corn is likely at no distant day to revolutionize the breadstuff supply of the world. A process has been discovered by which the finest and most delicious flour can be made from the seed to the extent of one-half its weight, and leave the other half a valuable food for making beef and milk. The average yield per acre is three hundred bushels, and in many instances five hundred bushels, or thirty thousand pounds, have been secured. Nor does it exhaust the soil as Indian corn, from the fact that it feeds from the deeper soil, and assimilates its food from a cruder state. It belongs to the same genus as the sweet cane, commonly known as sorg-hum, which as an article of food is growing rapidly in public esteem, and from the seed of which a most nutritious flour can be made.

To Remove Clinkers.

Clean out the stove, place some oyster shells around the cinders, leaving them in the stove for a few days; the shells will be converted into lime. The cinders can easily be broken off without any injury to the cylinder. If they do not loosen with one trial, give it a second one. Then give the bricks or cylinder a thick coat of lime wash. If a cylinder gets a coat of lime a few times a year the slag will never stick to it.

A good way to keep earth moist in a hanging basket without the trouble of taking it down is to fill a bottle with water and put in it two pieces of yarn, leaving one end outside on the earth.-Suspend the bottle just above the basket and allow the water to drop. This will keep the earth moist enough and save much time and labor.

Hop land near Utica, N. Y., usually commands $100 per acre. About 778 hills of hops are planted per acre, with two poles to each hlll. The cost of hops per pound (to grow) is usually from twelve to fifteen cents. Prices and yield are very variable.

A common flock should always be improved by procuring rams of breeds entirely different from the flock By so doing you avoid the uncertainty of inbreeding.

. Wew Jersey produced last year 496,630 bushels of cranberries, and got good prices for them. The demand for cranberries is increasing both at home and abroad.

A Wise Deacen.

" Deacon Wilder, I wan't you to tell me how you kept yourself and family well the past season when all the rest of us have been sick so much, and have the doctors visiting us so often."

" Brother Taylor, the answer is very easy. I use Hop Bitters in time; keep my family well and save the doctor bills. Three dollars' worth of it kept us well and able to work all the time. I'll warrant it has cost you and the neighbors one in the hops and the peighbors one in the hops and the second of th bors one to two hundred dollars apiece to keep sick the same time.

Dencon, I'll use your medicine here-

A Difficult Problem Solved.

Ambition, competition and over-exer-tion use up the vital powers of men and women, so that a desire for stimulants seems to be a natural human passion, and drunkenness prevails on account of this necessity for bodily and mental invigoration. Parker's Ginger Tonic fairly solves the difficult problem, and has brought health and happiness into many desolate homes. It does not tear down an already debilitated system, but builds it up without intoxicating.

From Rev. N. P. Granger,

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District. St. Albans, Vt., Jan. 20th, 1880.

DR, J. B. KENDALL, & CO., Gents: —In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with Kendall's Spayin Cure has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bot-tle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of tle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of immeness caused by Spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ring bone was forming. I procured a bottle of Kendall's Soavin Cure, and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the barch he found.

Respectfully yours.

I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off, and two months for the small one. I have used 10 bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no banch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me its sale will be very great.
