

A Dangerous Medicine.

LONG BRANCH, Aug. 23.—There is a great deal of excitement here over the death of Mrs. Kate Griggs, the wife of C. R. Griggs, the contractor and lessee of the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad, from blood poisoning caused by using an anti-fat medicine. The following facts were obtained from the mother of Mrs. Griggs:

On the 11th of August Mr. Griggs and his wife came to the West End Hotel and engaged a suite of rooms in the Cliff, a portion of the annex to the hotel. Mrs. Griggs was then in perfect health. On the 13th inst. a servant, entering her room, found her lying in a swoon on the floor.—Dr. Hunt of West End was summoned, but all his efforts to bring her out of the comatose state into which she had fallen were fruitless for a long time.

Mr. Griggs finally telegraphed for Dr. Sasa of New York, the family physician.—For a while both doctors were puzzled, and pronounced the case one of erysipelas. Mrs. Griggs was very stout, and Dr. Sasa, learning that she had been taking an anti-fat medicine, began treating her for blood poisoning. In her lucid moments she told Dr. Sasa that she had taken eighteen bottles of the anti-fat medicine in ten months. Recently she had become ill, and had discontinued its use. Once before Mrs. Griggs was taken sick after using this medicine, and the doctor, after great trouble succeeded in giving her relief. He told her that continued use of the medicine would certainly cause her death, and supposed that she had stopped using it.

The combined efforts of both physicians to save Mrs. Griggs' life were of no avail. Surrounded by her mother and sisters, and her husband who idolized her, she died in great agony this morning.

A Singular Divorce Suit.

MEMPHIS, August 21.—A double divorce suit, in which a woman sues for a divorce from two husbands made the record of the court yesterday. Adelina Harris, a tall but slenderly built woman, was married at Tusculum, Ala., in 1873, to Daniel Harris. They remained there until 1876, when they took up their residence here. Harris ill-treated his wife, but they managed to live together until 1878, when he enlisted in the United States army and went to the frontier. Several months after he was reported dead. She, not wishing to live alone, married John Duff, alias Wang Lee, a Chinaman. They lived together until January 1, 1881. She, hearing that Harris was in the city separated from her last husband, who took her watch and chain, apparel and furniture, with a promise that he would settle with her for them; but as he has not fulfilled his promise she sues for divorce from both men.

Knocked From a Mule by Lightning.

We learn that a little negro boy in Macon county was sent by his employer, on Friday or Saturday, to drive up some cattle, and while he was returning home with the cattle, some five or six head, a severe rain began to fall. The boy who was on a mule, and all of the cattle gathered up under a large oak for shelter. While there a flash of lightning shivered the tree, killed the mule, knocking the little negro about twenty feet off from it, and killed all the cattle. The little negro was only stunned, and as soon as he recovered made his way as fast as possible to his master, and with terror depicted in his face told him that he was "under de tree to keep out ob de rain, de debble run down in a streak ob fire, frowed him from de mule and den killed all de cattle and mule and run off wid dem.—Sumter Republican.

She Forgot Something.

A man drove up at a terrific pace to the railroad station at Farwell, Mich., and inquired for his wife. She had eloped with a neighbor, and was about to take a train for the East. "Thank goodness, I'm in time," the husband cried, in great excitement. The bystanders anticipated a tragedy, and the wife covered into a seat.—"Here's your child," he continued producing a little girl. "Reckon you forgot her in your hurry. Now you can get off as fast as you like." Leaving the girl with the runaway pair, he drove away with his placidity entirely restored.

A horse in Vermontville, Eaton co., Mich., being turned loose in a field where some log heaps had been burned, selected a pile of ashes to roll in. Then presently a rain drenched that horse, and the action of the water on the ashes that clung to him made a strong lye which ate hair, hide and flesh, and it was thought the horse would die.

Notions of the first Settlers.

Mr. W. H. H. Amidon, one of the first settlers in the town of Gilmantown, Wis., and one of the most industrious, hard working men in the country, has been severely troubled with rheumatic pains during the past few years, so much at times, that he was disabled from performing manual labor. Learning of the wonderful cures effected by the use of St. Jacobs Oil he procured a few bottles and experienced immediate relief. Many others of our acquaintances have used it and express themselves as highly gratified, with the relief it has afforded them. This kind of medicine can be bought everywhere.—[Mondovi, (Wis.)
