

A Carolina Mystery.

An Asheville, N. C., letter to the Atlanta Constitution says: There is now going on in the northern part of this, Buncombe co., a search for a child whose mysterious disappearance baffles all conjecture. On Tuesday morning David Ballew, his wife and child—the latter a boy about four years old—went out to the woods one quarter of a mile distant from their cabin, the parents for the purpose of "riving" boards, and the child because there was no one at the house to keep it company.

At about 11 o'clock A. M. the wife suggested that she must go home and prepare dinner. The husband assents. Mrs. Ballew starts in the direction of the house to which leads an undeviating country road. She had proceeded only some fifty or seventy-five yards when the boy began crying to go with her. The father after an effort to pacify him, told him to go with his mother. Just then as the child started on in the direction of his mother and home, Mr. Ballew hailed to his wife to come back and help him turn a log. Mrs. B., had then gotten a hundred or more yards away, and returned to the place where they had been at work and passed the child on the way still sobbing as it walked homeward. Having spent some minutes in aiding her husband, Mrs. B. again started home, expecting to overtake the child. She reached the cabin, however, without seeing the child, and asked two neighbors who had just come over to see her husband if they had seen it. On receiving a negative response the mother rushed back to look for the missing boy. Such was the story as told by the parents. Then it was that the search began in earnest and, among others, the informant of your correspondent came to aid his troubled friends. He says that they prosecuted their fruitless search until nightfall, their numbers being constantly augmented by fresh arrivals of interested neighbors. As the darkness of the mountains' night closed in upon the anxious searchers, they gathered fagots and lighted wood with which for miles around the hillsides were bespangled, like the dark sky above with its thousands of trembling chandeliers. For the subsequent days and nights has the weary search continued. But no trace of the lost boy has yet been found save the little tracks made by his bare feet in the road toward home.

A Lion's Memory.

The Brattleboro Phoenix says: Mr. Charles K. Wood, of this village, who for forty years was a manager in Van Amburg's and other menageries, has just returned from a short visit to the first-named show, and relates a circumstance showing the wonderful memory of animals. Mr. Wood was conversing with a showman, when an attaché said, "Go over and speak to Mose; he hasn't taken his eyes off you since you came in, more than an hour ago." Mr. Wood at once went to the cage and said, "Hello, Mose!" whereupon the old lion turned a somersault, whirled around, rolled over and rubbed against the bars with all the delight of a pet kitten. Mose is a very large lion, and sometimes very cross, but he was delighted and playful at seeing his old friend as a pet house dog or cat could be, and allowed Mr. Wood to handle and play with him without showing anything but the greatest affection, although he had not seen him for several years.

Starving an Imprisoned Wife.

A workman at a mill at North Hoosick, was accused of confining his wife in a cold, damp room, where she had been kept for several weeks, and giving her scarcely enough food to keep life in her body. A private detective visited the village yesterday, and his investigations proved the truth of the charge. The woman's calls from the window for food had aroused the pity and indignation of the villagers. The alleged cause of the inhuman treatment was the intimacy of the husband with a domestic. The remonstrance of the wife angered the servant, and on one occasion she struck the lady of the house with a poker, inflicting a severe wound on the head. The girl is also accused of threatening to kill her mistress. The detective, on learning the facts, determined to secure a warrant from Judge Forsyth for the husband's arrest, but the promises of reform and the intercession of respectable relatives led the officer to grant the offender a period of probation.

A Mob Resisted.

A special dispatch from Tiffin, Ohio, says: At 1.30 this morning a mob comprising several hundred appeared at the jail where Madder, who killed Phoebe Bernhard, is confined. A demand was made for the keys which the sheriff refused, and having previously gathered a posse armed to protect the jail, a lively riot ensued. Officers Brisk and Lambston received severe injuries, but the mob was expelled, and warrants are being issued for the leaders. Another attack is expected to-night. Captain Lepper's militia are ordered out.

A Strong Conqueror.

According to an Illinois exchange, our days of Rheumatism are well nigh numbered. St. Jacobs Oil enters a rheumatic territory, and conquers every subject. That's right. We believe in it. — Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.

BY
Benson's Caprine Porous Plasters.

Reasons Why they are Preferred to All Other Porous Plasters or External Remedies:

First.
Because they possess all the merit of the strengthening porous plaster, and contain in addition thereto the newly discovered powerful and active vegetable combination which acts with increased rubefaction, stimulating, sedative and counter irritant effects.

Second.
Because they are a genuine pharmaceutical preparation, and so recognized by the profession.

Third.
Because they are the only plasters that relieve pain at once.

Fourth.
Because they will positively cure diseases which other remedies will not even relieve.

Fifth.
Because over 5000 physicians and druggists have voluntarily testified that they are superior to all other plasters or medicines for external use.

Sixth.
Because the manufacturers have received the only medals ever given for porous plasters.
