HOUSE, FARM AND GARDEN.

Too Much Land for Profit.

The extent of the farm, the capital invested in tools and stock, and the amount of labor bestowed are often very much out of proportion. The average price of farms in this vicinity, one of the oldest and best counties in the State, is about $40 an acre. The value of an 80-acre farm is $3,200. The house barn and fences ought to be worth $1,000, but they are usually not worth more than $1,000. The value of teams, tools and stock animals is about $800. The young farmer often begins with $1,500 of capital. He purchases 80 acres for say $2,000, pays $1,000 down, and has $500 reserved for team and tools. If he is a good economist, has a good wife to help him, is a good manager with good health, he soon works his way up to the condition of the average well-to-do farmer, with farm and stock worth $4,000.

But too often, instead of buying an 80-acre farm with his $1,500, he buys 100 acres, and ploughs and fences what he can. But he has so much to do on the new farm that his crops are not properly tended, his horses are worked too hard, and his large farm suffers in every way for the want of the right proportion of capital and labor to the quantity of land. He is not able to build a good barn; his few animals suffer in the stormy, cold winter weather; his tools are not housed; he has not time to set out fruit-trees, shade-trees and wind-brakes to protect his buildings and crops; and the sloughs and wet places on his farm cannot be drained.

When he bought his farm he expected his sons would grow up, and he could divide his farm among them. But alas, while he has had the place for a pleasant and attractive homestead, he has failed to make it so; and his sons and daughters do not like the farm. They go to town or city to escape the drudgery of the farm, and for lighter work obtain higher wages than the farmers pay. Meanwhile age is advancing on the farmer. The mistake he made was in having too much land, and too little of the other necessities for comfort and profit.

A New Style of Stocking.

A New York correspondent says: "In New York a delightful employment and beautiful article of dress is accomplished by knitting what are termed railroad stockings. The most stupid person can knit round and round, and that is all that is required."

There is a silk knitting thread sold here at twenty-nine cents a ball, four of which make a big pair of stockings; but I find the yarn too soft, and prefer a tightly twisted, finer thread, which I purchase of a fringe maker in skeins, weighing five ounces.

Cast on twenty-eight stitches on the needles and knit away till you have a slender pipe (entirely unsuggestive of a stocking) and about one-half a yard long—not that, if the stocking is not desired an extra length. Then knit round once, dropping every fourth stitch; the dropped stitches will run to the top of the stocking, striping it in lovely open work and making it instantaneously one-third longer, and wide enough for the largest sort of leg.

After this, the stocking being as many stitches smaller as you have dropped, you knit about three inches at that size, and then toe off. "What! no heel?" I hear the uninitiated exclaim. No heel. It's a poor foot that won't shape its own stocking; the old lady said when she knit them this way; but the extreme elasticity of the railroad hose makes a heel unnecessary. They are durable, they are handsome; and they are such jolly things to have round for work that I anticipate you will thank me for the recipe.

How to Boil Potatoes Mealy.

When the water nearly boils, pour it out and put in cold salted water; it makes them mealy without cracking them.

Man's Ingratitude.

This is an ungrateful world to say the least. A man will act like a lunatic when he has the Itching Piles, and declare that he knows he can't live another day, yet he applies Swayne's Ointment, the intense itching is allayed at once, he gets cured, and goes down to the lodge without one word of gratitude. When asked why he looks so cheerful, he dodges the question by an indifferent answer. It's just like a man though, isn't it?

Thousands of women have been entirely cured of the most stubborn cases of female weakness by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.—Send to Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, 233 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass., for pamphlets.
