

Guiteau as a Witness.

On Wednesday the assassin was put on the witness stand. The following is an abstract of his testimony: In reply to questions as to the Onedia Community, he said that he believed when there that Noyes was inspired of God. He believed in inspiration; believed that God could inspire him to do a certain act, and that he must obey the inspiration. He then resumed the narrative of his experience as a lecturer from February, 1878 when he tried to lecture in Boston against Ingersoll, but the people would not come to hear him prove the existence of a hell. In April, 1878, he got his lecture printed again in Philadelphia; was afterward in the law in Milwaukee, but started out again. He identified a book called "Truth," a companion book to the Bible, and read a passage about the trials of the Apostle Paul. He said his own was a similar case; he tried to enlighten the world but he had no money, and had about as rough a time as the Apostle Paul had. He described his campaign experiences in New York, and his being on the Stonington when it struck the Narragansett on his way to Boston. Thought his time had come; but he prayed, and was preserved. He then described his return to New York his interview with Governor Jewell, General Arthur, and others. Subsequently he called on President Garfield at the White House, and gave him his speech, on which was written Paris Consulship. Afterward he could not see the President, and became worried over the political situation.—The Court, having ruled against the reading of a printed slip, the witness continued: "On the Wednesday after the resignation of Conkling, I was feeling very blue, when suddenly it came over me like a flash if the President was removed all would be well. It kept coming to me every day. At first I was horrified, but I kept thinking, until I knew it was an inspiration."

After continuing in this strain, the prisoner said he never mentioned his inspiration or his purposes to any one. During the interval preceding the "removal" of the President he was busy arranging his plans and preparing a revised edition of his book Truth. After a sketch of his jail life the court took a recess. On the reassembling of the court Mr. Scoville desired to put on the stand a witness from Columbus, Ohio, who desired to leave, but this was objected to, and Guiteau was again examined. He told the story of the several attempts upon his life. He also gave a full account of his arrest and the events of the 2nd of July with perfect unconcern. After answering a few more questions, Guiteau broke in with: "I want to define my position on this one point. I believe General Arthur is a friend of mine; he ought to be, for I am the man who made him, or my inspiration did, but I never yet asked a favor of him, and don't suppose I ever shall." The direct examination having been concluded Judge Porter in a very serious manner commenced the cross-examination, the witness replying in a cool and collected manner.

John Chinamen's Experience.

Among the fashionable visitors at the roller skating rink last evening, says the Cleveland Press, were Jing Hee and Wash Hop, two Chinamen. They are the most enterprising of their clan in the city. It was Jing who first of all his tribe wore paper collars, and it was Wash who led the van with a real live moustache. These two cultured gentlemen had read in the papers about a roller skating rink and, without knowing what it was, they determined to try it. With a guiltless grin on their leather-colored features they paid their entrance fee and sneaked in. They presented a vision of rare loveliness. Wah Hop wore a rich black silk "polney," with a single file of buttons down the front. His dainty limbs were encased in pearl gray pantaloons and his diminutive feet were hid in a pair of black velvet shoes with wooden underpinning. Jing Hee's dress was a duplicate of Wah Hop's, save that he wore his pig-tail closely reeved. The Celestials saw the other guests enter and secure pairs of shoes on wheels, and they did likewise. When once on their feet the two started off at a terrific rate of speed. But, alas! they had forgotten to test the air-brakes. They saw that a collision with a fat young lady was inevitable. "Whoo—stopee!" yelled Jing; but neither the lady nor the Chinamen's skates responded to the order. Four Chinese legs flew into the air, two Celestials came down so quickly that their pig-tails cracked like whips, and the Celestial males were mixed up in the drapery of the Caucasian female in a hideous manner. "Bleg paldon, mladom!" exclaimed Jing as he regained his feet, only to come down a second later into the young lady's lap. With the aid of a derrick the two young mashers were lifted to a perpendicular position. Bringing down the rudders, the trimming the mainsails and nailing down the batches, the two crafts sailed ahead again with a wild cackle of glee. A small boy and two females were capsized in the Chinamen's mad flight. The boxes of the skates became hot, but still the almond-eyed "furriners" flew ahead. Their pig-tails laid out behind them so straight that a trapeze artist could have easily performed on them. But a wicked wretch threw some obstacle in front of the celestials, and they came down with a thud which fractured the boards of the floor and sent their hip bones up to meet their shoulder blades. "Too much rolley sklate!" exclaimed Jing. Wah recoiled the motion. Wearily they unbarressed their feet and limped to the door.

Wise Words of a Willing Witness.

At the close of a mass meeting according to the report of the same published in a La Grange paper, reference was made to the phenomenal efficacy of St. Jacobs Oil in the many painful diseases to which mankind is subject. We refer to the above as showing how strong a hold the Old German Remedy for Rheumatism, has on the experience and good wishes of the public.—Walla Walla Watchman.

Advertisement for 'Jing Hee's Ointment' featuring a portrait of a man and text describing its benefits for various ailments like skin diseases, rheumatism, and general pain relief.

Advertisement for 'Beware of Fraud' and 'Benson's Capcine Plasters'. It claims to be a reliable remedy for various pains and has been imitated by others.

Advertisement for 'Seabury & Johnson's' 'Wife's Remedy' and 'A Mead's Medicated Corn and Bunion Plaster'.

Advertisement for 'Hop Bitters' as 'The Purest and Best Medicine ever Made', listing various ailments it treats.

Advertisement for 'SOUTH' real estate services, mentioning James River Settlement and a catalogue.

Advertisement for 'IMMENSE SALES. BOYS WANTED' for chromo cards and other items.

Advertisement for 'FLORIDA!' real estate, offering 50,000 shares for $10 each.

Advertisement for 'Largest Stocks' by 'Fall and Winter Season'. Lists various clothing items like suits, overcoats, and boots with prices.

Advertisement for 'Furnishing Goods' by 'Marx Dukes & Co.'. Lists a wide variety of household items like carpets, trunks, and furniture.

Advertisement for 'PENSIONS' for soldiers and sailors, mentioning 'Pensions for Soldiers' and 'Pensions for Sailors'.

Advertisement for 'GOLD MEDAL AWARDED' for a 'Pensions' book, highlighting its value and awards.

Advertisement for 'PENSIONS' for soldiers, sailors, and widows, listing various benefits.

Advertisement for 'PENSIONS' for soldiers, sailors, and widows, listing various benefits.

Advertisement for 'A GREAT OFFER FOR THE HOLIDAYS!!!' featuring pianos and organs at low prices.

Advertisement for 'PATENTS!' by 'George E. Lemon', offering legal services for patent applications.

Advertisement for 'PIANOS AND ORGANS' by 'H. C. Orth', listing various models and prices.

Advertisement for 'C. A. AUGHINBAUGH, JEWELER', listing various jewelry items and services.

Advertisement for 'S. W. Fleming, BOOK AND STATIONERY STORE', listing various books and stationery items.

Advertisement for 'THE OLDEST AND BEST Watch and Jewelry' by 'Charles A. Boas', listing various watch and jewelry items.

Advertisement for 'DIVES, POMEROY & STEWART! BARGAINS!' listing various goods and their prices.

Advertisement for 'EXCELLENT BARGAINS, GREAT VARIETY. OUR FALL AND WINTER STOCK IS NOW OPEN.' listing various clothing and goods.

Advertisement for 'GARFIELD' biographies and 'PATENTS!' by 'George E. Lemon'.