Computer Center Offers Training

by Carolyn Dudas

The computer center is offering training sessions on a variety of software packages on both the PC's and the mainframe computer. The training sessions are open to students, faculty, staff, and administration.

Several sessions will be offered on word processing packages such as MacWrite, Writing Assistant, and WordPerfect. Other sessions will provide an introduction to MacDraw and MacPaint which are drawing packages on the Macintosh computers.

The Computer Center will offer a session on MS-DOS, the operating system for IBM PC's, and provide an introduction to some common DOS commands used for listing, copying, and deleting files.

There will also be introductory sessions on using CMS/XEDIT for those having a mainframe computer account. (Students are issued these accounts by their instructor if the course requires the use of the mainframe computer). This session will provide users with basic information on how to edit your mainframe computer files.

Those attending the CMX/XEDIT session must bring their computer account card or the equivalent information in order to participate in the "hands-on" practice sessions.

Additional information concerning the dates, times, and locations of the sessions can be obtained by calling the computer center (898-6415) or by checking the training session schedule posted on the Computer Center bulletin board.

Since enrollments are limited for each session, those interested in attending any session should stop by or call the Computer Center to make a reservation.

White Pride Group

CPS A "white pride" student group has registered as an official campus organization at Temple University.

With principles very similar to those of the Ku Klux Klan, which also advertises itself as a white pride group, Temple's White Student Union (WSU) aims to promote white culture and to end affirmative action programs which, WSU President Michael Speltzer said, discriminate against white people.

His Philadelphia-based university, Speltzer maintains, has a "pro-minority" bias.

Kathy Gosliner, a university spokeswoman, did not know how many students belonged to the group, although its application was signed by four members, as required by university rules. As a registered campus group, the organization is entitled to use bulletin boards and meeting rooms, she said.

In a written statement, Temple President Peter J. Liacouras said the group has received more attention than it deserves, and affirmed Temple's commitment to affirmative action.

Diabetes Screening

The Health Center will sponsor a blood sugar/diabetic screening program tomorrow on the first floor of the Winter Garden from 9 am until noon and from 1 pm to 3 pm. A two-hour fast is required prior to the test to assure accuracy. A $3 fee will be charged to cover the cost of the test materials. The Health Center staff will forward test results to family health care providers upon request.

Pamphlets and brochures with information about sugar, nutrition, and diabetes donated by the Erie County Diabetic Association will be available at no charge. For more information, call Patty McMahon at 6217.

Radio Station

already decided that the station format will not be primarily rock music. "There are already a lot of rock stations and rock music doesn't sound good on AM anyway," Reber said.

Bunting described the planned format as block programming. "It will try to encompass as many different types of programming as possible...it will be a rather eclectic mix, containing music and talk," he said.

Currently, the committee is planning a format based on news and talk shows. Tentative subjects for the talk shows include poetry readings, faculty interviews, and the broadcast of Behrend basketball games.

Reber said that the radio club, previously associated with WBCR, will play an integral role in running the new station and work closely with the manager.

The station will be located in a new studio being built on the first floor of the Reed Building.
