

New support group being formed for Behrend students who are also parents

group to offer babysitting services

by Janet Ocampo
Collegian Staff Writer

The possibility of providing a child care facility that functions on an hourly basis is the main focus of the new Students who are Parents support group.

The group, organized by Dr. Carolyn Spies and staff psychologist, Dr. Louanne Barton, plans to initiate a co-op babysitting service for parents in need of child care facilities.

This co-op babysitting service will enable parents to attend more classes without having to be concerned about locating a baby sitter or bringing a child to class.

The organization is open to both parents and to other students interested in offering assistance.

Baby sitting chores may be handled by others members of the group on an exchange basis. This support group also welcomes student to participate in the program as caretakers.

Member Kathy Rabbit explains there are two different issues for child care. Members of the group say a day care center on campus is a long term goal, but will concentrate on implementing the baby-sitting service for the present.

This service will accommodate the growing need for on-the-spot child care, according to Barton.

"Being a parent and a student is an extra challenge and it calls for extra support, said Barton. "Not only do they need support for each other, they also need support from the college and administration."

Students who are Parents functions as a non-profit organization. Students with or without children interested in becoming apart of this program may contact Dr. Louanne Barton at 898-6164.

Baseball team ends year with fundraiser game

The Behrend baseball team concluded their fall season this past week with the annual 100-inning game. The game, matching veterans against all newcomers, raised over $1,600.

Head Coach Michael Bari and his Lions have raised $8,650 in four years. The money is used to pay for the Lions southern trip each spring break.

This year, the veterans prevailed 52-49. There was a total of 206 hits on the day. Ray Cerqua led the vets at the plate going 19 for 35, while scoring and knocking in eight runs. Darin Wotus also chipped in a 13 for 34 day.

For the rookies, Shawn Krepps led the way collecting 12 hits in 35 plate appearances. Tim Cook knocked in seven runs for the first year players. Chris Myers and Scott Frantz each collected nine hits in the game.

faculty. The meetings, as of now, are scheduled to take place in Lawrence Hall.

The first session of "Sunday With The Times", a program designed for Behrend students to meet and discuss current issues, was held this Sunday in the Reed Building.

There was a moderate turn out and discussion was lead by the students. Housing and Food Services provided free coffee and doughnuts for all who attended.

Meetings are run under the format of students discussing national and international events with input from a member of the faculty.

The program is held every other week, each week with a different member of Behrend's

This week some of the topics discussed were the closer relations between the Vatican and Eastern-block nations, the Sony takeover of Columbian pictures, and development of Guatemala as a proto-Columbian nation with an increase in drug trafficking.

Christopher Hughes, a Junior Political Science major, says, "Sunday With The Times is a great way to discuss current affairs and-at the same-time-meet some fellow Behrend students."

Dan Behana is a major coordinator of the program and feels this is a great opportunity for students and hope they take advantage of it.

Joint Residence Council holds its 3rd annual Behrendwood Squares event

JRC held its annual game of Behrendwood Squares Wednesday, September 27 at 6 pm. Students gathered on Niagara Hall's front lawn to watch the event, which was emceed by John Downey and Kevin Trenney.

Behrendwood Squares is based on the nationally syndicated game show Hollywood Squares.

Niagara's windows were filled with familiar Behrend faces, including Todd Allen and Randy Hoffman from Police and Safety, Lynn Case from JRC, Ken Miller from Residence Life, Paul Barny of the Biology Department, Brent Vernon from SPC, Captain McCarthy of the ROTC, Dave Shields, Elvage Murphy, and various RA's.

The panel, armed with various items ranging from Slime to bubbles, answered Kevin Trenney's offbeat questions with unusual comments and antics that had the crowd laughing. Contestants who signed up to participate competed for prizes of Play-Doh, Silly String, and $20 gift certificates from Record Den.

Chris Dean, Renee St. Denny, and Eric Long were the winners in their rounds. Impromptu rounds were also played with contestants chosen from the audience. Jeff Nicholson and Rob Grasinger were among the winners.
