Sigma Theta Chi caught in the middle of Greek Sing controversy

by Lea Gotch
The Collegian

Last Thursday evening Greek Sing, a lip sync contest between the various fraternities and sororities on campus, was held in the Reed Lecture Hall.

The sororities were judged by a member of each fraternity, and Sigma Theta Chi was determined to be the winner.

Since then, a controversy has arisen over the content of the skit that Sigma Theta Chi performed.

In the skit, one member of Sigma Theta Chi stripped down to a body suit while behind a screen with a light behind her to create a silhouette. The other members of the sorority danced on the stage to the song "You Don't Have to Take Your Hat Off" from the movie 9 1/2 Weeks.

David Shields, assistant dean of student services, said the presidents of Alpha Sigma Alpha, Alpha Sigma Tau and the Panhellenic Council approached him with objections to the performance.

He said these representatives felt the act that Sigma Theta Chi performed did not depict women in a positive way.

Leigh Stanesic, president of Sigma Theta Chi, said she received a letter notifying her that the objections would be discussed at the meeting of the Panhellenic Council held last night. Stanesic said according to the letter she received "A judicial board is not being called."

"I hope it can be straightened out, we thought we did really well," said Stanesic. "We felt it was done in good taste."

The objections are based on the stipulations of the code of conduct in the Panhellenic constitution "which says we must have dignity and good manners," said Stanesic.

Shields said that "hopefully this will be a learning experience for all. I think the sororities in general are embarrassed by it [the controversy]."

Greek Week activities successful

Delta Chi, Sigma Theta Chi crowned champs

honors in the obstacle event. Sigma Kappa Nu and Sigma Theta Chi each won respective first places in the Greek Sing.

Dizzy bats was held on Friday, followed by volleyball. Kappa Delta Rho and Sigma Theta Chi won the dizzy bats contest while Delta Chi and Alpha Sigma Tau each took first place in the relay race.

Coming in first place for the fraternities -- winning the obstacle course race, softball, the food eating contest, and the relay race -- was Delta Chi.

This is the second year in a row that Delta Chi has nailed down the top spot. Earlier this year Behrend's chapter of Delta Chi was recognized by their National Headquarters for their achievements here at Behrend.

They were noted as colony of the year with the highest GPA in the Greek System, and won such awards as Campus Leadership, Outstanding Chapter Advisor (Bill Williams), and Outstanding Intramurals at their National Convention held this past summer in New York.

October 13 symbolizes the 100th anniversary of Delta Chi which was founded at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York. Recognized members of Delta Chi will be attending their Centennial Anniversary Banquet at the Erie Plaza Hotel.

Sigma Tau Gamma took second place while Sigma Kappa Nu tied with Kappa Delta Rho for third place. Zeta Beta Tau captured 4th and Tau Kappa Epsilon finished with 5th place.

Mike Harvey, president of Zeta Beta Tau, said he, "was pleased with all the events and the competition was fairly healthy; most of the events were a lot of fun but some issues were handled improperly and the organization needs to be improved for next year."

Sigma Theta Chi captured first place for the sororities while Alpha Sigma Alpha won second place and Alpha Sigma Tau finished third.
