Another Penn State Behrend alumnus joined the ranks of distinguished alumni earlier this week in a ceremony held at Behrend.

Richard J. Fasenmyer was presented with Penn State's Alumni Fellows Award by Penn State President Joab Thomas on Monday. Fasenmyer attended Behrend for two years (1965-1967) before graduating from University Park with a degree in business administration in 1969.

The Alumni Fellows Award, established in 1973, has been presented to a select group of outstanding alumni from across the Penn State system. Fasenmyer is the eighth recipient from Behrend.

President and chief executive officer of RJF International Corp. and Fabricated Extrusions Corp., which make and manufacture polymer-based products for a global network of customers, Fasenmyer has instituted a comprehensive quality management program within RJF and has focused employment training upon global competitiveness.

"We have to realize that we are in a world economy and we can no longer hide behind the boundaries of the United States," he said. "Today, the challenge to

This weekend Penn State Behrend has a full schedule of activities planned for its annual Homecoming Weekend.

Homecoming festivities are designed to be a celebration bringing together parents, families, students, and alumni, according to administrators. Its purpose is to give everyone the opportunity to see Behrend at its best.

"Our hope is to build a tradition where we can have alumni, students, families and parents come to Behrend to enjoy a weekend of fun-packed activities," said David Shields, assistant dean of student services. "It's a chance to show off the campus in its normal operation."

The festivities begin on Friday evening with a Hawaiian Dinner followed by Bruno's Night Club Comedy Series featuring stand-up comedian Al Fike.

Next is a campus bonfire and pep rally in support of Behrend's soccer team. The night ends with the movie King Ralph, sponsored by the Student Programming Council.

Saturday's activities include campus tours, tours of local wineries and a Western Barbecue for lunch.

Saturday afternoon will feature the men's soccer team in action against Indiana University of Pennsylvania. There is also a Candlelight Dinner planned for Saturday evening.

Bonnie Fagan, Associate Director of Development and University Relations said,
