Machine robbed

School officials estimate $500 loss

by Dave Berger

The existence of condom machines on campus came into question again -- not about appropriateness, but how long they'll last.

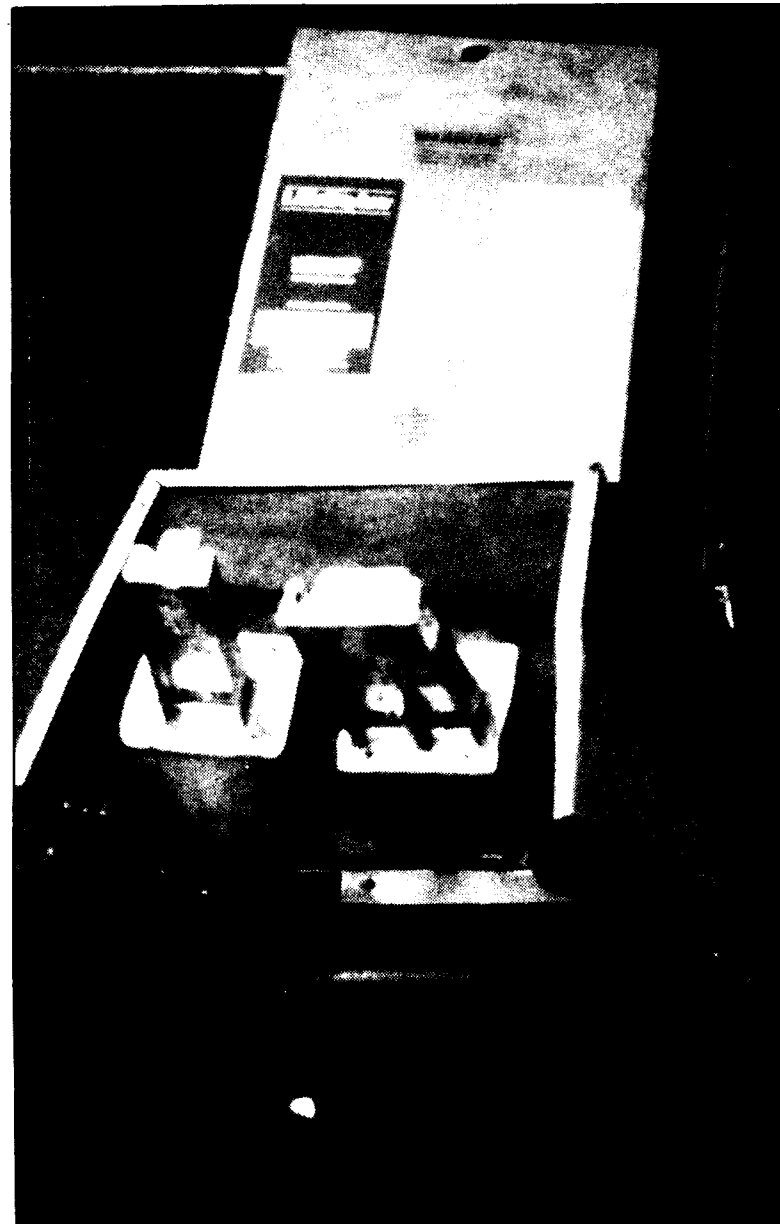

Last Thursday night a condom machine in a Lawrence Hall men's room was vandalized. The machine was ripped open and its money and condoms were removed. Police and Safety officers later found it in a dumpster.

"It was found in a dumpster on campus, and it is still an ongoing investigation relative to the theft of the money and condoms from the machine," said Larry Silvis, Police and Safety manager. "This is a serious matter that we're not going to take lightly."

Nancy Warzyniak, RN, Health Center nurse said damage totals around $500, including the machine, money and condoms.

"It was the student's request for the condom machines to be made available on campus, and we put them in for health reasons because of many prevalent sexually transmitted disease, including the HIV virus," said Warzyniak. "We were very upset over the disrespect that some of the students had for this community property."

Warzyniak added, "This condom machine will not be replaced. Patty McMahon (CRNP and Health and Wellness Coordinator) had done research on vandalism of condom machines and had found no other incident of vandalism at any other college."

Police Report

Two students charged with harassment and conspiracy

by Jeff Johnson
The Collegian

On Thursday, Oct. 17, two students who had been making obscene phone calls were arrested and charged by Police and Safety with harassment by communication and criminal conspiracy.

Vandalism

On Friday, Oct. 18, Police and Safety found a light pole behind the Otto Behrend Science Building knocked over. The pole had been broken at the base and was laying on the grass. The incident is now under investigation.

Theft/Vandalism

Also on Friday, Oct. 18,

Police and Safety received a report that the condom machine had been stolen from the lobby men's room in Lawrence Hall. The machine was later retrieved from a Waste Management dumpster. The contents and money were removed from the machines, and the machine was damaged. The incident is now under investigation.
