Universities seek to control alcohol on campuses used 'drug of choice' on college campuses today and we cannot solve the drug problem until we solve the alcohol problem," said Dr. Peter Likins, Task Force chairman and president of Lehigh University.

Likins, whose task force developed the recommendations, said endorsements from alcoholic beverage and tobacco companies promotes use and leads students to believe that alcohol and tobacco go hand-in-hand with those events.

"Alcohol is an underlying influence in most acts of vandalism and violence, including rape, on college campuses, and the incipient cause of death in automobile and other accidents for college-age youth," said Likins.

The task force also recommended that colleges and universities:

- Establish an interdisciplinary group responsible for developing and implementing a comprehensive alcohol and other drug program.

- Provide and require that all students and employees have inexpensive health insurance that will cover standard alcohol and drug treatment.

- Increase the state tax on beer, something the task force says is "inexpensive and accessible" in Pennsylvania.

Safety reminders for parking your car on campus

With the addition of the new parking lots last summer, Behrend's traditional parking crunch has been significantly eased. However, the Traffic Appeals Board, a division of the Student Government Association, has observed several reoccurring trouble areas where parking regulations are often misunderstood or simply abused.

The following will hopefully clarify these trouble areas in parking regulations. The Traffic Appeals Board requests that students, faculty and staff review the Official Parking Handbook, available in the Police & Safety building and also scattered throughout the Reed Building, for the actual regulations.

The following are reminders and clarifications of those parking policies:

- If your vehicle breaks down and is, or will be, illegally parked, notify Police & Safety immediately. Also, place a note prominently on the dashboard including the nature of your problem, your name, and phone number.

- If this procedure is followed, according to the Traffic Appeals Board, officers are likely to be more understanding of your predicament. Obviously, officers can't tell whether a car runs or not by looking at it, so it is your responsibility to notify P&S.

- If you are injured, and have temporary difficulty in walking, don't just park in a handicapped spot because you are on crutches. Call Police and Safety and obtain a temporary handicapped parking permit. Again, it is your responsibility, not Police & Safety's, to make sure they understand your special needs.

- The only place students can park in the Reed Lot, Monday-Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., is in the five-minute parking spots. Students can only park for five minutes, and flashers must be used. Student cars in spaces adjacent to the five minute spots, no matter how full the five minute spaces may be, will be ticketed. No further exceptions.
