Homecoming

Director of Admissions, Mary-ellen Madigan encourages students to attend the Academic Fair.

"It's good for students who aren't decided on a major," said Madigan. "It's a rare opportunity for students to talk with professors one-on-one."

Madigan said, "the Master Classes are basically Behrend Faculty making a presentation in their area of expertise."

"The alumni panel discussion is composed of alumni from the 50's, 60's, 70's, 80's and 90's who will discuss what Behrend was like when they attended it."

The alumni athletic events are reunions of Behrend's former teams explained Bonnie Fagen, development officer.

"They will play against each other, as well as the (Behrend's) current teams," Fagen said.

"Homecoming is really a combination of the three groups (admissions, development, student activities) working in cooperations," said Fagen.

Behrend Budget Strikes Series

by Teresa Turley
The Collegian

Due to budget cuts implemented within the Penn State system Behrend's nationally recognized Speaker Series has been cancelled.

There will still be a type of speaker series, but it will be made up mostly of Behrend faculty.

According to the administration, the money saved from the speaker series cut will be filtered into other forms of activities and programs for students.

Money has been allocated into the improvement of Bruno's Night Club. There will now be live performances at Bruno's, every weekend night.

The intramural sports program has also been granted extra funds. Intramural programs will now be held as day long tournaments.

Money has been allocated to supplement residence life staff, who currently have no budget. The remaining funds will be given to clubs and organizations across the board.

According to administration, by doing away with the Speaker Series, Behrend didn't have to cut other service areas.

The series gained national recognition for Behrend, therefore, its cancellation not only effects students, but faculty and the community as well.

David Shields, director of student activities, explained that The Speaker Series set Behrend aside from other colleges.

Behrend students expressed feelings of regret towards the Series cancellation.

Todd Turley, a sixth semester MIS major, said, "I'm upset that they are cancelled because I enjoyed them greatly."

Both David Shields and John Burke, Associate Provost and senior Associate Dean, are hopeful that they can bring the Speaker Series back, but it depends on the budget cuts they have to make. They hope they can bring it back because they know how much it means to campus life.

Brandon Hunt, a third semester Science major said, "I think its tragic, I think the students get a lot out of them."

Sue Galle, a seven semester Psychology major, said, "It seems that the programs that have to do with education get cancelled, so what are we paying all the money for?"

Police Report

by Jeff Johnson
The Collegian

Medical Assist

On Thursday, September 17, campus police were called Erie Hall where a volleyball player, from another college, had fallen and dislocated her shoulder. Brookside Fire Department was called to transport the victim to the hospital.
