The season of change

It's the semester of hello and goodbyes. Assistant Professor of Psychology, Michael Ichiyama, will be leaving this semester, but we have also gained a staff member.

Sue Daly, currently Behrend's personal counselor, has been hired as the new clinical psychologist.

Daly worked for Erie's Rape Crisis Center for 17 years before coming to Behrend. She has received her Master's Degree in Clinical Psychology and "may one day" pursue a Ph.D. She has been working at Behrend since the beginning of the fall semester as a part-time personal counselor before acquiring the full-time position.

Daly was chosen from a field of three possible. She made it through this initial phase before moving on to the interview session.

"The night before the interviews, I was nervous," said Daly. "But I told myself, let Behrend take a shot with me."

She prepared for questions aimed at determining her competence and claimed later that they weren't as hard as she thought they'd be.

Daly said, "I was touched and honored in receiving the job."

"Daly was a clear-cut choice. She has a pleasant nature and the students are comfortable with her," said, Chris Reber, dean of Student Affairs. "She's seen more students here part-time than were seen all of last year. The students must feel comfortable around her."

Upon returning from the holidays, Daly plans to organize her office for the next twelve months. She is planning to gather information for a multimedia library with videos and audio-visual tapes, which students will be able to take out.

She commented that she is here for students and if any student has a problem or wants to talk, they can call and make an appointment. She is located in the Counseling and Advising office in the Reed Building.

Michael Ichiyama, Assistant Professor of Psychology, will be leaving Behrend at the end of the semester to pursue a job at the University of Michigan at Lansing. There he will be part of a longitudinal study program.

Roberta Salper, Division Head of Humanities and Social Sciences, said "I am devastated at his leaving."

"This is a good sign for the Behrend College Psychology Department being good enough to stay or go. It's testimony of his quality and the quality of our division."

Ichiyama lamented that he will miss Behrend, but at this point in his life, he couldn't pass up the opportunity. It will be a good move for his career.

He needs to find out if this is the route he's going to be happy with or if he's going to miss the classroom.

Ichiyama also said, "I will miss my students more than anything else, in and out of the classroom." He valued his colleagues, but the students are the ones that make up the campus.

The division of Humanities and Social Sciences will begin a national search for a replacement for Ichiyama in January.

Ichiyama was involved not only with his classes, but also advised the Psy Chi-Honors Society, was the faculty advisor for Behrend's Martial Arts Club and also the faculty advisor for Behrend's Billiard Club.

According to Salper, one of the major goals for the future of the division would be to increase the number of full-time faculty for the psychology department.

No allowance for profit

Sparks flew last night at the Student Government Association's regular Wednesday night meeting.

SGA learned that Senator Eric Pine, Chairman of the Spring Break Committee, earns a $6 commission for every person who books a trip through him from Travel Associates, the travel agency which is arranging the annual spring break trip to Florida. In addition, Pine gets a free trip to Florida for his recruiting efforts.

Pine requested an additional commission of $5 per person from SGA, which would provide him with $500 in profit. However, Pine changed his mind and requested instead to follow University Park's system of compensation, which allows a representative from the travel agency to go in front of SGA and request a commission of $15 out of every $35 in sales.

A motion was passed to allow Pine to keep the free trip to Florida, but not to receive a commission from SGA. He must also relinquish the $6 per person commission he earns from Travel Associates to SGA's general fund.

Commuter Senator President Mike Brenneman was pleased with the decision. "I think it was justified and he deserves the trip. SGA is also justified in receiving the $6 per person from the travel agency due to the risk we take in backing the trip and to defer the costs we incur," he said.

"I think it was fair and proper, and I'm glad to see that the senate views themselves as service oriented," added Greg Farrell, vice president of SGA.

So, the University plans to phase out funding for WPSE? Then they'll just have to fund it themselves.

WPSE, Behrend's own commercial radio station, plans to hire a marketing and sales sell and run the station so that eventually the students can run the station completely by themselves.

"The main focus will be sales, but he or she will also work with the students to develop their skills in radio sales and marketing," said David Shields, director of Student Activities.
