

Symphony Orchestra. The programme as followed out by the company was exceptionally fine, and elicited well-merited applause. Miss Haeker, as soprano soloist, delighted the audience with her selections and responded charmingly to hearty encores. Mr. White, as elocutionist and impersonator, recited several amusing and original anecdotes, which, by the volume of applause that they brought forth, were well received.

Most enjoyable of all, however, was the musical programme given by the twenty young ladies of the company. Beyond the fact that each selection was a gem and was exquisitely rendered, the appearance of the orchestra upon the stage was most attractive. The various costumes and the tasteful arrangement of the company, together with the personal charms and graces of the individual members, composed as pretty a picture as can well be imagined. It is our sincere hope that the company may revisit State College on its return trip next spring. If it should, it may be assured of even a larger and more enthusiastic audience than the first.

To those who, by their attendance, so kindly contributed to the success of the affair, the FREE LANCE extends grateful thanks. And most especially do we wish to acknowledge our indebtedness to the members of the Faculty and the ladies of the College for their favors and their encouragement.

NOTICE

FOR the benefit of Mr. F. H. Thomas, Supt. of the B. C. R. R., and Mr. Bartruff, Manager of the Bellefonte Lecture Course, we wish to enlighten the holders of the Course tickets in regard to the recent action of the B. C. R. R. When selling tickets for the course, Mr. Bartruff stated that a twenty-five cent rate could be secured on the railroad provided one hundred Course tickets were sold. At the time almost a hundred persons had signed a paper to the effect that they would buy tickets, but about twenty-five of the people neglected to buy them. For this reason the number of people holding tickets is so much below one hundred that Mr. Thomas finds it impossible to sell railroad tickets to them at the rate which he promised to charge one hundred persons.

Should a sufficient number of Course tickets be sold for the re-
