LOCAL.

G. W. Gelwicks '06 has left college.

Who blew out the clock? We can't tell the time of night.

Capt. Lawton has returned to the College after several weeks absence.

How do you "buff" a watch? Prof. Jackson will answer all questions.

History classes last Friday were held in the Library, with no cuts (?) allowed.

Open question: Has the percentage of flunks in "Applied" increased this year?

R. T. Fennell, ex-'05 was in town on Friday last to see the State—Altoona A. A. basketball game.

—Your class pictures, athletic groups etc., are preserved and appear better when framed. Ray Farrington will take your order for The Mallory Studio.

A. M. Ingram '07 and brother, John Ingram of the sub-Freshman class were called to their home at St. Mary's, Pa. by the death of their father on Saturday last.

The Engineering Building is being fitted with new sky lights over the Steam Engine Lab. The new glass is but 3-8 inch thick, and unlike the old, is not to be walked upon. A screen is being put over it to guard against accident.

The young people of the College community, most of them children of members of the Faculty, gave a performance of the play "Prince Charming's Fate" at the home of Prof. and Mrs. J. Price Jackson on Saturday evening last. The proceeds were for the benefit of the Bellefonte Hospital. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Louis E. Reber.

When the electric power was shut off on Saturday night, the air-pump at the Calorimeter stopped, and for sixteen minutes the steer inside was without air. The men in charge were just about to open the door, when power was again turned on. Had the pump failed to work for five minutes more, the experiment would have been spoiled by the death of the steer.

Alumni Notes.

E. S. Erb '01, Hugh J. Boyle, '03 and Geo. O. Gray, '03, have all been seen in town during the past week.

W. A. Smith, '01, is at the present time filling the position of assistant chemist at the Experiment Station.

C. F. Bierbauer, '02, is employed as chemist with the American Nickel Works at 10th and State Sts., Camden, N. J.

There will be a meeting next Friday of the Alumni Committee on arrangements for the coming Semi-Centennial Jubilee in June.

The present address of J. N. Sherer, '99, who has recently been transferred from Lebanon to Philadelphia is, care of Pennsylvania Steel Company, Girard Building, Philadelphia.

It is reported that Roland Diller, '00, has quite a severe attack of fever. He graduated here in the Mining course and has been employed in the Assay Department of the United States Mint of Philadelphia.

Cavalry Maneuvres.

The annual mid-winter maneuvers of the State College cavalry are being held this week, chiefly in the Armory. For dexterity in managing their dangerous steeds, even the famous Cossacks of the Russian Army are not to be compared with our own small (?) band. Up to the time of writing, no accidents have been reported, although, as in previous years, a few riders will probably be dismounted before the week is ended. At this time of the year, these exhibitions have no connection with the military department, and no effort is made by horsemen to display their proficiency before the general public.
