

C BINDING DEPT.
PAITER LIBRARY
CAMPUS
Weather Forecasts
Partly cloudy, windy (even windier in the East Halls parking lot) and cold today with a few brief snow flurries. High near 40. Clear and cold tonight. Low near 28. Mostly sunny and a little warmer tomorrow and Thursday. High near 55 tomorrow; over 60 on Thursday.

Democrat Assails Schweiker Award

SOME PEOPLE like presidential aspirant George C. Wallace, and some people don't. At the Hershey Arena last Friday, the two men (left) carrying the sign showed their appreciation one way, and the student who held his pose for more than an hour displayed a differing opinion.

Denounces Honoring of Schweiker With Skull and Bones Membership

By DENISE DEMONG
Collegian Staff Writer

The Democratic Chairman of Centre County yesterday attacked the decision to present Rep. Richard M. Schweiker (R-Pa.) with honorary membership in a senior men's hat society.

"I firmly believe," said Mrs. Marie Garner, Democratic chairman, "that President (Eric A.) Walker is using poor judgment in permitting political views to be so strongly demonstrated near election time."

Mrs. Garner added, "This is not the first time that President Walker has allowed Republican political views to be demonstrated at the University. He did the same thing earlier this year by complimenting Ray Shafer for the allocation of funds to Penn State."

"The allocation was endorsed by Democratic legislators and did not need Shafer's approval. Shafer held up the funds to force the Democratic legislators to go along with his tax program."

"The Democrats cooperated with this in order to have the University appropriation allocated; it amounts to blackmail by Gov. Shafer. Walker's later praise of the governor is a poor and unwarranted stand."

Mrs. Garner was responding to the recent announcement that Skull and Bones will present an honorary membership to Schweiker Saturday during halftime ceremonies of the Penn State-Army game, three days before Election Day.

Schweiker is running against incumbent Democrat Joseph S. Clark for election to the U.S. Senate. His selection by Skull and Bones was announced last week as part of initial Homecoming plans.

Mrs. Garner demanded clarification of the award to all news media. "It has been confused with the Distinguished Alumnus Award presented annually by the University Board of Trustees," she charged, "but it cannot be considered representative of the sentiments of the Penn State faculty and student body, who have endorsed the re-election of Sen. Clark."

James Kefford, president of Skull and Bones, responded, "Of course, Skull and Bones has no power to give anyone a University endorsement."

Kefford explained that the honorary membership, which is an annual presentation, is not always given to a University alumnus, although Schweiker did graduate from Penn State in 1952.

"To the best of my knowledge," he said, "confusion of this with the Distinguished Alumnus Award is simply an error."

Until last year, when Gov. Raymond P. Shafer received the award, it had been given only to University personnel. Laurence H. Lattman, professor of geology, and James W. Dunlop, professor of music education, are among past recipients.

Kefford said that the decision to make the presentation Nov. 2 was based only on the fact that Schweiker is planning to attend the Homecoming game.

The award, he explained, is given to an outstanding Pennsylvanian who has made large contributions in the field of education. In announcing the award, Skull and Bones said of Schweiker that "Since his graduation, Congressman Schweiker has continued to strive for his alma mater. He has helped to make Penn State the fine institution it is today."

"If Skull and Bones seeks someone who has contributed to education," countered Mrs. Garner, "who has done more than Senator Clark? He has endorsed such educational programs as Head Start and Upward Bound."

"Clark has favored federal grants to the Pennsylvania State University to the tune of millions of dollars, but has never been credited with doing so."

"Centre County Democrats have always demonstrated responsibility toward the University. It is a direct insult to allow a single candidate to be favored at election time."

Tickets Gone

The last of the 17,100 student tickets for Saturday's homecoming game with Army were sold yesterday, according to ticket manager Richie Lucas.

Although students still filled the hallway outside the Rec Hall ticket office, the last of the tickets were gone at 3 p.m. Standing room tickets will go on sale at 12:15 p.m. Saturday at Beaver Stadium.

"Last year we had three games with student tickets left over," Lucas said in explaining the situation. "Only the UCLA and North Carolina State games sold out the student sections."

They Cheered, Booed Wallace Fans Exult, Hail 'Der Fuhrer'

By PAUL LEVINE
Collegian Editor

"Spectators are warned that danger from a flying puck injury may result from failure to protect yourself" — sign in the Hershey Arena.

You didn't have to see the Wallace buttons on their collars or smell the chewing tobacco on their breaths or hear the double negatives tumble from their mouths. You could tell from their faces — they were Wallace supporters.

The fans of the former Alabama governor have a distinctive look about them. It doesn't matter if they're from Huntsville, Ala., or Hershey, Pa., the look is the same.

When nearly 5,000 of the little segregationist's fans piled into the Hershey Arena last Friday, they played their roles to perfection. In they came in their plaid, flannel shirts, chewing cigars between tight, thin lips, and baring their teeth in hard, little smiles.

They looked at the world from deeply set eyes beneath broad sloping foreheads topped by closely cropped hair.

These were the Wallace people, and they carried banners urging their fellow citizens to "Stand Up For America."

And stand up they did. They stood at attention when Sam Smith and the Travelers played a country rendition of "God Bless America." They stood when some of their ranks in open collars and baggy

Hecklers and George Give 'Quite a Show'

By WILLIAM EPSTEIN
Collegian Managing Editor

If you weren't in Hershey on Friday, you missed The Greatest Show on Earth.

This show had everything. It was serious, but at the same time it was a farce. It was exciting, but it was also dull.

All of this was brought to Chocolate town, USA, by George Wallace and his American Independent Party. And the Hershey Arena hasn't put on such a display since its last bench-emptying brawl during an ice hockey game.

The show got underway even before Wallace was introduced as "The next President of the United States." A combo which could have been labeled Clyde Appledung and the Hicksville Moo-Moos offered music, country style, while the people entered the arena.

A round of "God Bless America" followed. It was amusing to watch these patriotic people who want to "Stand Up for America" — many were mumbling and looking around at each other, embarrassed, because they didn't know the words to the song.

Some 30 Wallace Girls were circulating in the crowd, carrying buckets for contributions. Later, during Wallace's speech, they stood at the side of the stage, squealing and clapping in appropriate spots.

"Are you going to vote for Wallace?" one of the girls was asked.

"Oh, you bet," she answered. "He's the only one"

Wants State Agency Status

TIM To Ask for Rent Curbs

By MARC KLEIN
Collegian Staff Writer

Town Independent Men's Council will ask the University to give it the power of a rent control board in dealing with downtown apartment landlords.

TIM President Joe Myers told The Daily Collegian last night that Rep. Max Homer (D-Allentown), co-chairman of the House committee investigating student housing in state colleges and universities, is planning to propose that a rent control board be established at all state colleges and universities.

Myers also reported that Homer is asking his committee to hold a hearing next month to investigate the housing situation. Landlords, University officials and students will be invited to testify.

TIM will have representatives at the hearing, Myers said.

Myers said he will ask Charles L. Lewis, vice president for student affairs, this week to sanction TIM as Penn State's rent control board if Homer's bill is approved.

State Agency TIM

If TIM could act as a rent control board it would be a local agency of the state and would work in conjunction with the proposed state rent control board, Myers explained.

Homer decided to make his proposal after touring State College apartments last week with TIM representatives. He referred to the apartments as "unfit for human beings," naming University professor and State College landlord Shou-Chuan Sun as "the biggest offender."

A grievance committee, made up of students in Sun's apartments, recently threatened Sun with a rent strike unless improvements were made. TIM has given Sun up to the end of this month to make the improvements.

Sun: Minimal Repairs

"Dr. Sun has made minimal repairs," Myers said. "They have been evident in those places where students have complained."

"As far as lowering rents, Dr. Sun has been extremely unsympathetic," Myers continued.

"He is not the only one. There are many others like him and they will be coming under fire very soon," Myers said.

TIM is starting a referendum to ask students how they feel about a rent control board.

He said, "As a town Congressman (of the Undergraduate Student Government) I disagree with what I understand of this plan. We're putting the cart before the horse."

"We've got to get this man to sponsor this legislation. We've got to lobby as an organization and we have to get students to write to their congressmen," Klasky continued.

Klasky said that TIM does not have the time to operate as a rent control board. He wants TIM to organize student support behind Homer to get the bill passed.

Homer will also present a bill calling for the end of age discrimination in renting apartments. Myers said that a number of landlords will only rent to graduate students.

According to Myers the better built apartments and the less expensive ones are often reserved for graduate students.

Banner Contest Held Today, Kicks Off TW3 Activities

By DENISE BOWMAN
Collegian Staff Writer

TW3, contrary to the rumor perpetrated by Jon Fox, Homecoming Chairman, does not mean "They Want the Women that Will."

TW3, or "That Was the Way Things Were," is the theme for Homecoming '68, which began yesterday with the deadline for Banner contest entries.

Preliminary judging for the banner contest will take place today. The winners in each residence area will be announced tonight.

The banner judges will travel to each area beginning with West Halls at 4:45 p.m. and followed by North, East, Pollock and South Halls. Traveling with the judges will be the five finalists for Homecoming Queen, the cheerleaders and the Nitty Nitty Lion.

The three trophy winners will be announced at the Pep Rally Friday night at Recreation Hall. Banners will be displayed at the jammy later that night.

Also today will be the preliminary judging of law. If an infraction should be found, no penalty will result as long as the infraction is rectified by the time of the final judging Thursday night.

The "BE-IN" campaign also begins today. A

Daily Collegian Homecoming advertisement will appear in Friday's issue which will list the names of the individuals and groups who participated in the campaign.

To have his name listed each individual must pay ten cents and each group one dollar to the "BE-IN" desk on the ground floor of the HUB from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. today through Thursday.

Homecoming buttons will be distributed free of charge tomorrow with the first 1,300 issues of Froth. Froth will be sold all day tomorrow at the HUB, the Creamery, on the Mall, and between Simmons and McElwain Halls.

Judging for the window painting contest will take place between 1 and 5 p.m. tomorrow.

The Homecoming booklet will also go on sale tomorrow. It will list the Homecoming events as well as an overview of past homecomings.

Final judging for the lawn displays will take place Thursday between 4 and 7 p.m. Judging will be based on adherence to theme, originality, expression of University spirit and neatness.

Friday, marks the beginning of Homecoming week-end. The activities start at 5:30 p.m. with a bonfire at the field south of Beaver Stadium.

The bonfire will be followed by a motorcade, which will wind through State College, passing all of the lawn displays. Motorcade decorations must

UUB Sponsors Contest, Referendum

Mock Presidential Election Set

By ALLAN YODER
Collegian Staff Writer

Whether you're 21 or not, you can still vote in the presidential mock election and referendum.

Sponsored by the University Union Board, the election will be held tomorrow and Thursday across campus. Voting machines will be located in North, South, East and West dining halls, in the Pollock Union Building, on the ground floor of the Hetzel Union Building and on Pollock Road on the Mall.

All polls in the dining areas will be open from 11:30 to 1:30 and from 4:30 to 6:30. Polls on the ground floor of the HUB and on the Mall will be open from 11:00 to 4:00. Town students will have to vote on campus, but they are not restricted to the HUB and Mall.

Previously sponsored by the Undergraduate Student Government, the mock election this year is being conducted by the UUB as part of an expansion of the Board's activities.

"No Candidates Acceptable" If neither Humphrey, Nixon or Wallace is suitable to the voters, they will be able to pull a lever signifying "no candidates acceptable." Voters also will be able to write in a candidate's name.

In addition, there will be five referendum questions on the ballot. The purpose of these, according to UUB Elections Commissioner Jeff Lessing, is to "try to determine how strongly Penn State students feel on what we consider very pertinent questions." The questions range from international subjects to topics important to this campus.

The first question is: "Do you approve of Mayor Daley's methods of maintaining law and order at the Democratic Convention in Chicago?"

Guns, Forum, Blacks The other questions are: "Are you in favor of the registration of guns as a method of gun control?" "Do you think President Walker should engage in an open forum with the student body specifically to discuss those questions raised at the Free Speech Movement?" "Do you favor an unconditional bombing halt in Vietnam?" "Should the University make a conscious effort to increase minority enrollment by remedial programs such as Upward Bound?"

Turnout Hoped For Lessing said that he is looking for a "big turnout" in the mock election. "For once, the students here really do have something substantial to justify taking time to vote for. We want to know what the people on this campus think. Not that it will mean anything politically, but we hope to show that Penn State students aren't completely apathetic," Lessing said.

Michael Alexander, UUB president, said much the same. "A lot has been said about the apathy of the students here. But hopefully we'll prove that students aren't apathetic when it comes to something like a presidential election."

Voters will be asked to specify whether they are over or under 21 years of age. Also voters will be asked their sex.

All of this, according to Alexander, is to help in the planned interpretation of the election results. "Results will be compared to a minor degree, to the survey taken by Phillip Klopp and the sociology department last spring," Alexander said.

Klopp is going to make a comparison of the results of this election to the results of the survey. In the survey, students were asked to answer questions pertaining to their political leanings.

Comparison Difficult A comparison will be difficult, though, Alexander said, because the poll was a random sampling of student opinion and nearly all students who were asked to fill out the questionnaire did so. On the other hand, Alexander said, "this election is open to everyone and it will discriminate against apathetic students."

Lessing said he expects a much better turnout for this election than there was for the USC elections in the fall. "I'm curious to find out how many people will come out and vote when they actually know who they are voting for," Lessing said. "This is something substantial, and I think the students will come on strong."

Willard Wirtz To Speak Today

Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz will speak in the Hetzel Union Building Ballroom at 4 p.m. today.

Wirtz is expected to support the election of Democratic candidate Hubert H. Humphrey to the presidency and urge the re-election of Sen. Joseph S. Clark.

Wirtz will also speak at a fund raising banquet for the Centre County Democratic Committee at 6:45 tonight at the Nitty Nitty Lion Inn.

News, Sports, Editorials

Collegian Wins Awards

The Daily Collegian has been awarded first place in news writing for 1967-68 by Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society.

The Collegian also won second place for sports stories and third place in editorial writing in the annual college press contest.

No other collegiate newspaper placed in three categories.

The Daily Trojan, of the University of Southern California, won awards in 17 categories, placing first in sports stories and third in feature stories.

Competition was open to the 98 universities and colleges which have Sigma Delta Chi campus chapters. Serving as judges were members of the society's Louisville, N.J., Pittsburgh and Utah professional chapters.

Collegian editor Paul Levine will receive the Collegian's first place award at Sigma Delta Chi's annual convention next month in Atlanta, Ga.

Mary Patricia Loftus, a June graduate of the University, was also honored by Sigma Delta Chi, winning a first place award in TV public service journalism.

- The winners:
- NEWS STORIES
- 1st — The Daily Collegian
 - 2nd — The Post, Ohio University
 - 3rd — Minnesota Daily, University of Minnesota
- SPORTS STORIES
- 1st — Daily Trojan, University of Southern California
 - 2nd — The Daily Collegian
 - 3rd — Daily Tar Heel, University of North Carolina
- EDITORIALS
- 1st — The Marquette Tribune, Marquette University
 - 2nd — The Oklahoma Daily, University of Oklahoma
 - 3rd — The Daily Collegian
- FEATURE STORIES
- 1st — The Daily Iowan, University of Iowa
 - 2nd — Kansas State Collegian, Kansas State University
 - 3rd — Daily Trojan, University of Southern California

The Lonely Blacks— See Page Three